Seized Records Show Was Treated for Habit at Sanitarium Where Wallie Reid Was a Patient.

Los Angeles, Jan. 3.—All records pertaining to treatment of patients and handling of narcotics at the Barker Sanitarium here were seized today by Federal and State officers who were investigating the Los Angeles activities of "Dr." John Scott Barker, arrested in Oakland on charges of violating narcotic laws.

The papers were said to relate in part to the fight against drugs made by Wallace Reid, motion picture actor, who recently became seriously ill following abandonment of drugs and liquor and indicated that Juanita Hansen, film actress, also had undergone treatment.

The Los Angeles Times today quoted Miss Hansen's mother as stating the actress profited from the treatment, regaining her health and losing her craving for drugs, but declares Reid, after two weeks in the institution, was turned out "almost a wreck."

The seized records showed Reid entered the sanitarium October 19

OPENING MARKED BY SQUABBLE

Democrats in Row as First Women in Legislature Take Seats

Marked by a bitter personal row among the Democrats over the selection of their floor leader and by the presence of women sitting as law-makers for the first time in the history of the State, the 144th annual session of the Legislature started today.

For the first time in many years the House balconies were unable to accommodate the crowds anxious to see the two women take their places in the body of solons.

Both Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald, Democrat, of Boston, and Miss Sylvia M. Donaldson, Republican, of Brockton, were signally honored.

Mrs. FitzGerald was appointed to the legislative committee on Metro-

BANS KNICKERS IN NAHANT SCHOOLS

The knicker is barred in schools in Nahant. The girls now wear skirts, even though warm. So ruled Superintendent Lewis C. Nourse. This made the flappers angry, of course. They're going to convene to give vent to their spleen. Nevertheless the school heads say the knickers are not to be seen in school.

PREMIER LENIN OF RUSSIA 'DYING'

London, Jan. 3.—Premier Lenin of Soviet Russia is reported in advices received in Riga to be very ill again, says a Reuter dispatch from Riga today.

Physicians have been summoned from western Europe to attend the Premier, "but his entourage has abandoned hope of his recovery," the dispatch quotes the advices as declaring.

BOY ADMITS $4,000 THEFT FROM FATHER

Albert Pothier pleaded guilty in Chelsea Court today to larceny of $4,000 of laundry money from his father, Joseph, and was given a year's suspended sentence in the House of Correction.

The son, who is twenty-nine, comes from New Bedford and is boarding on Everard avenue, Revere, while managing a wet wash laundry in Revere for his father.

The father had his son arrested a month ago.

SHUT 300 CLOTHING SHOPS IN N. Y.

New York, Jan. 3.—Three hundred clothing shops in New York are closed and 6,000 workers are idle as the result of the decision of employers that they could not operate profitably at the wage schedules.

The number of idle is expected to be increased to 10,000 by the end of the week. The shut down comes at the start of the Spring rush. Employers said that downward wage revisions had been refused by the workers.

GETS JAIL TERM FOR DRIVING OVER BOY

For driving away after he had hit a thirteen-year-old boy, Joseph Guero of No. 3 Thacher street, North End, was given four months in jail by Judge Sullivan in Charlestown court today. A fine of $25 was imposed for having no license and an additional $15 for operating on the wrong side of a street.

2 'WIVES' ACCUSE HUSBAND

Mate No. 2 of Heart-Breaker Is Jailed; He Is Let Off With a Fine

Spectators in Woburn District Court today witnessed a series of astounding and heart-gripping episodes.

They saw a court attendant bring up a two-year-old baby boy—a lad so small and winning that there were a chorus of "oha" and "ahs" from the women in the audience which packed the courtroom.

This was the child of Mary Wombolt, which, it is charged, she had abandoned shortly after it was born. The baby was presented to Mary.

"Is this your baby?" Judge J. J. Morton asked.

Mary slowly shook her head.

"I don't know," she said, dully "I can't identify him."

The baby cooed happily. The mother wept. That was one episode.

Then Mrs. Agnes Leavitt of Lynn, mother of Mary, took the stand.

She astounded the court by stating flatly that Joseph, the two-year son of her daughter, was not the son of Ralph A. Harding, who was arraigned with Mary, the charge against him being that he aided and abetted her in the abandonment of the child.

She said that the father of the child was a Mr. Erwin. The child's features proved that conclusively, the mother testified. And there were other matters which convinced her that Erwin, not Harding, was the father.

The spectators heard the mother

ACCUSED OFFICIAL TO FIGHT

National Head of Veterans' Bureau Here to "Clean Out Local Office"

Colonel George R. Forbes, head of the Veterans' Bureau in Washington, reached Boston today to investigate charges against Dr. Arthur A. Brides of the local bureau, accused of improper conduct with one of his girl employes and "other charges."

The colonel announced that he would demand Dr. Brides' resignation at the opening of the hearing, which will be held tomorrow morning in the doctor's private office, starting at 9 o'clock.

Dr. Brides.

Dr. Brides declared today:

"There is nothing yellow in me and I certainly do not intend to resign. They can investigate to the limit, but I will not quit."

Colonel Forbes said today:

$20,000 BOYLSTON STREET ROBBERY

Burglars bored through a wall of the establishment of Louis Blackstone, furrier, at No. 120 Boylston street today, and escaped with $20,000 worth of furs. Two showcases of mink, sable, beaver and raccoon furs were looted. It is believed the goods were taken away in an auto.

SUE CAMP DEVENS BUILDERS FOR $5,000,000

A suit for $5,000,000 for alleged breach of contract was filed this afternoon by U. S. District Attorney Robert O. Harris against the Fred T. Ley Co. of Springfield. The alleged violation of contract occurred in the construction of Camp Devens at Ayer. The action is an offshoot of the Federal Grand Jury investigation of alleged frauds in the construction of cantonments. Among seven men indicted December 30 was James A. Mears, former manager of the Ley Company. Camp Devens cost the government about $12,000,000.

POLICE CHIEF GETS $80,000; HE QUITS

Montclair, N. J., Jan. 3.—Henry Gallagher, for more than twenty-three years chief of police of this town, tendered his resignation after announcing that he had received a check for $80,000 from his uncle, John Dorr, a linen manufacturer of Dublin, Ireland. Chief Gallagher, who is sixty-four, said he and his wife would leave for St. Petersburg, Fla., soon and later go to Ireland to visit his uncle.

FORMER SULTAN OFF FOR MECCA TODAY

Valetta, Malta, Jan. 3 (By International News Service).—The British will get the former Turkish Sultan, Mohammed VI., off their hands on Friday, when he departs from Malta for Mecca, the holy city of the Mohammedans. Mecca is in the newly-created kingdom of Hedjaz. The ruler has promised an asylum for the former head of the Ottoman state and church.

GIRL LEADER OF BANDIT GANG HELD

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Elizabeth Sullivan, twenty-one years old, confessed leader of five youthful bandits, according to police, was in jail here today, charged with participation in about seventy-five burglaries and holdups in North Shore suburbs. Two members of the alleged gang were in jail with her while police sought the remaining three.

ARMED RING PUT AROUND BLACK BELT

Rapulpa, Okla., Jan. 3.—Precautions against possible race trouble here after the slaying of one policeman and the wounding of four others Monday night by a band of negroes were continued today. Officers and deputized citizens, heavily armed, formed a cordon around the negro district and prevented the races from mixing.

U. S. RELIEF HEADS IN GREEK CONFERENCE

Athens, Jan. 3 (By the Associated Press).—A conference of the Greek Cabinet and officers of the Near East Relief to discuss plans for future work will open here Thursday. Charles Vickery, secretary of the Near East Relief, and Dr. James L. Barton and William W. Peet, who have been at Lausanne, are expected here in time for the conference.

BOOZE PROBE IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 3.—Determined to find the source of the liquor consumed in hotels and cafes New Year's eve, Federal officials have directed proprietors of more than a score of the leading hotels and restaurants to produce for examination by a Federal Grand Jury their reservation lists. It is understood that the persons shown on the lists will be called before the Grand Jury to explain where they got the liquor.

CLAIMS TRAIN SCHEDULE IS IMPROVING

Claim of improvement in the train service on the Boston end of the New Haven road was made today by Howard A. Moulton, publicity official of the system here.

Mr. Moulton said he though the service had improved and that incoming trains in the morning rush hour today did not show an average lateness of more than four minutes. This referred, presumably, to the average schedule of all the incoming trains, those on time and those late, not the average of only those which were behind time.

When Mr. Moulton was asked whether train service, according to daily reports, showed improvement, he replied:

"I think it has improved. We are optimistic over the future and expect better things."

He mentioned the accession of twelve locomotives received from the Bangor & Aroostook road and said they were performing good service. He continued:

"We had at one time 120 engines out of commission. These are being put back in place as rapidly as possible."

The "Owl" express on the New Haven Railroad, due here from New York at 7:45, was 1 hour and 21 minutes late today, although it was only 13 minutes late Tuesday.

The 8:08 from Newport, 20 minutes late yesterday, was 22 minutes behind time today.

The night express from New York, due here at 7 o'clock, which was only 30 minutes late yesterday, came in two sections today, both late. The first was 1 hour 21 minutes behind time; the second an hour and 40 minutes.

The first section of the Federal Express from Washington, for which the New Haven road in only partly responsible, delivered its first section one hour and thirty-five minutes late yesterday and the same section one hour and thirty minutes late today.

The first section of the Pittsburgh Express, due here at 8:58, was one hour and five minutes late today, compared with one hour and fifty-five minutes late the day before. This is another long-haul express which the New Haven receives from another system.

Commuters waiting at Quincy for the 8:21 finally boarded the 8:23. Some of them said, when the 8:23 arrived at the South Station, they guessed the 8:21 did not run, at least they saw nothing of it.

COUNTY SUES TO RECOVER $300 BAIL

Suit was filed today by Attorney James G. Wolfe of District Attorney O'Brien's office to recover $300 surety posted by Adolf Graustein of Cambridge, for Charles W. Titcomb, Boston milk men, in 1917, when the latter was convicted in two counts of having milk below standard in Superior Criminal Court.

Titcomb was sentenced to pay fines of $20 and $75. He appealed to the Supreme Court, was overruled, and then filed notice of his determination to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court. He has failed to do this or pay the fines. The suit is one of about forty instituted by Mr. O'Brien to recover surety given as bail.

DEMANDS PROBE OF UPSHAW CHARGES

Washington, Jan. 3.—Investigation of the Upshaw charges that some Governors and many other high officials "do not practice the prohibition enforcement which they preach" was called for in a resolution introduced today by Representative Hill of Maryland.

$60,000 for Colby

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 3.—President Clifton D. Gray of Bates College announced today an anonymous gift of $60,000 to the million dollar endowment and gymnasium fund. Including the $200,000 conditionally promised by the general education board, this brings the fund total to $550,000.

DE VALERA ASKS SINN FEINERS TO RALLY

By International News Service.

Dublin, Jan. 3.—"Ireland is ours for the taking," declared Eamon De Valera and Austin Stack, in a signed communication in the Republican bulletin today announcing the opening of a new campaign against the Free State government.

The letter is addressed to "all Sinn Feiners" and states that organization headquarters will be reopened at once. It continued:

"The policy will be that the Sinn Fein is the only visible means by which the national forces can be reunited and a program of national regeneration and social justice be undertaken. We need only the will to act in the true spirit of the Sinn Fein to be at peace with one another and master of our destiny."

Mistake Saves Life of Irish Official

Dublin, Jan. 3.—An attempt to assassinate Minister of Commerce McGrath was frustrated today through a mistake in identity. Two youthful Republicans entered the office of the Ministry of Commerce, drew revolvers and were about to open fire upon a man resembling the minister when they discovered their mistake and bolted.

Dublin, Jan. 3.—The report that the four rebels recently arrested in the Tralee district had been executed in Kerry has been officially declared to be without foundation.

Electoral Bill Passes Second Reading in Dail

By DANIEL O'CONNELL, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, Jan. 3.—Reconvening today, the Dail Eireann proceeded with the second reading of the Irish electoral bill granting the ballot to all persons over twenty-one years of age.

Passage is assured. The act is expected to increase the number of Republican voters in the next election, as an extraordinary number of young women have actively espoused the Republican cause. Some of them have joined the Republican army and are fighting with it.

After the bill is out of the way the Dail will resume debate upon the inaugural speech of Governor-General Timothy Healy, and an act to provide compensation for "malicious mischief and to grant amnesty to British military and police.

DOCTOR BRIDES ASKED TO QUIT

in the Veterans' Bureau in this city, I will close up the office and move it to another city in forty-eight hours. But I will clean it up if it is the last thing I do on this earth.

WILL DEMAND LOYALTY.

"I am tired of coming here to find an atmosphere of disloyalty. I want to be able to come here, in the future and find honest, faithful, loyal activities.

"I don't propose to have any more of this disloyalty. I am tired of the gum-shoe work that has been going on here. I will fire everyone in the office, if necessary, to make a change in the other direction.

"The first thing I will do tomorrow will be to ask Dr. Brides to resign. I will sit on the case myself and my word will be final."

HEARING IS PRIVATE.

No spectators will be admitted to tomorrow's hearing.

The following witnesses will be called: David J. Flannery, William Blaikie, Haywood Moet.

Asked whether or not the action against Dr. Brides was because of his official or private life, Colonel Forbes said: "Because of what has happened right here in this office."

DELAY B. & M. TRAINS BY BRIDGE TIE-UP

Hundreds of commuters arriving over the Boston & Maine were delayed from ten minutes to half an hour early today and their trains had to be detoured by various routes in order to arrive at the North Station as the result of the breaking of a guy rope on two of the draws of the bridge over the Charles River just outside the station.

The trouble was caused by the tug Betsy Ross breaking one of the drawstring cables holding up the Eastern Division tracks while towing a sand lighter bound up river. As a result, four tracks were tied up. The two tracks were not restored to service until 8:30 a. m.

25 MORE VETERANS GIVEN CITY WORK

Mayor Curley appointed today twenty-five more war veterans as laborers for work on the Maverick square, East Boston, loop of the Elevated for six months. They will receive $4 per day.

Definite Sum—Fair Size Harding and Wilson Educating Criminals Tossing for Justice

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

FRANCE AND ENGLAND cut the German bill for indemnity to twelve thousand five hundred million dollars, gold. At least it is a definite amount, and there is a possibility of Germany paying it.

Falstaff, boasting of his agility, says, "If any man will caper me for a thousand pounds, let him lend me money, and have at him."

Germany in diplomatic language will make some similar proposition: "Lend me a few billion of gold marks to start, and I will accept your proposition."

ENGLAND AND FRANCE agree on the lump sum, but not on terms. England suggests thirty-two-year bonds, paying no interest for four years, then 4 per cent. for four years and 5 per cent. afterward.

France, naturally, wants money right away. They probably will reach some kind of a compromise, for they are beginning to realize that they must.

Anything is better than uncertainty, which was the former condition.

A CHEERFUL TONE in European exchange indicates that the countries think something may be done in the way of real business on this proposition.

The question is: "Who is to supply the first lump sum, or perhaps guarantee German pay?"

If you gave any British or French statesman three guesses, he probably would guess Uncle Sam, three times.

MR. WELBURN, Commander of Vallejo Post, No. 104, of the American Legion, writes: "When the picture of former President Wilson is thrown upon the screen with that of President Harding, applause is accorded the former President, while a peculiar silence greets President Harding. Explain it if you can."

PRESIDENT WILSON, with the best of intentions and the greatest of generosity, spent the nation's billions. Everybody got high wages. Some men got enormously rich; the war boom was on. Flying machines that never flew, ships that never sailed, everything went.

No one is more popular with the crowd than "a good spender." Even when he has stopped spending, they applaud and say, "He was a good fellow while he had it."

PRESIDENT HARDING'S job is saving, not spending.

His Attorney-General is indicting men that robbed the country in grafting contracts. The President and his Secretary of the Treasury are, with difficulty and economy, paying off notes, war bonds and Liberty Bonds, damages to concerns whose contracts were interrupted—billions upon billions.

The good spender is always more popular than the economist, especially if the good spender promises to save the entire world in the spending. There's your answer.

HERE'S THE ACME, climax, summit, ne plus ultra of combination brutality and stupidity. In the prison at Sing Sing they are teaching the criminals to box.

Kind men have complained that criminals in jail were taught nothing and made worse. In Sing Sing they will be taught something, and will be made better criminals. A thoroughly trained criminal should know how to knock out the involuntary host whose premises he selects for his operation.

Thousands of criminals are not

HEROIC SAILORS SAVE BOSTON SHIP IN GALE

The Munson line collier Munmotor picked today at the Boston Elevated Airway's coal pocket at Lincoln Wharf, Atlantic avenue.

That the vessel is not resting on bottom somewhere between Barnegat and the Virginia capes, and that the forty-two officers and men on board of her did not perish is due to his heroism of her chief officer, Edward Petersen, and five members of the crew who manned the pumps in icy water up to their necks.

Captain E. Diamond spent three days and nights on the bridge, manoeuvering the ship when her fire peak and No. 1 hold were filling with water and mountainous seas were threatening to sink her. The Munmotor sailed from Norfolk December 26 for Boston with 9000 tons of coal. She met with big, high winds and tumbling seas from the start. On the 28th a northeast gale was encountered.

About 9 o'clock that night the ship began behaving badly and Captain Diamond swept the decks with the bridge searchlight. For three days he crew labored heroically.

Then the ship took a list to starboard and Captain Diamond fearing that she would sink, sent out a wireless call for help.

Saturday the coast guard cutter Acapoo appeared and stood by about three miles away. The Munmotor's pumps had made such progress by this time that Captain Diamond decided not to abandon the ship.

MAYOR WANTS ARMY BASE FOR HUB BOOM

Mayor Curley today recommended to Governor Cox the advisability of the State taking over the South Boston Army Base pier so as to be prepared when the "port of Boston boom arrives," which is expected if the Interstate Commerce Commission reduces the railway differential rates.

THREW SPOONS AND MATCHES, GIRL SAYS

When Hyman Smith became angry at his wife, Sarah, he would light cigarettes and throw lighted matches at her face, according to the daughter, Miss Blanche Smith, a teacher in Richard Allen School, when she appeared today in Suffolk divorce court.

On one occasion, she testified, the meal prepared so enraged him that he hurled a spoon at Mrs. Smith. This, the daughter said, bounced from the mother's head and crashed into a crockery bowl with sufficient force to shatter it.

Frequently the father would seize the family broom and belabor the mother with it, the daughter continued. She cited other instances to support Mrs. Smith's charges of cruel and abusive treatment.

Smith, a tailor, denied all the allegations with vigor and protested that his wife and daughter were casting him aside because he is "an old-fashioned tailor." He charged that all the family troubles were due to Mrs. Smith receiving a substantial sum of money.

N. Y. BIRTHS FALL OFF AS DEATHS INCREASE

New York, Jan. 3.—Marriages and births fell off in New York during 1922, while the number of deaths went up, it was disclosed in the year's vital statistics, made public today. Marriages were 2,554 fewer than in 1921, births 4,557 fewer and deaths increased by 5,432.

INSURED GEMS FOR $298,000

Woman in $500,000 Robbery Believes Host at Card Party Innocent

New York, Jan. 3 (By International News Service).—Inspector John D. Coughlin, head of the detective bureau, said he was informed that under no conditions would Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf appear to press any charge against Frank B. Carman in the $500,000 gem robbery, one of the most remarkable crimes New York has produced in years.

Coughlin was informed that Mrs. Schoellkopf was leaving at once for Buffalo with her husband. "The insurance company has no power to force Mrs. Shoellkopf to appear against Carman, the inspector said.

Officers of the Federal Insurance Company admitted that the jewelry stolen from Mrs. Schoellkopf was insured for $298,700. Mr. Schoellkopf said they were worth much more than that amount. An independent investigation of the robbery was under way today by inspectors for the insurance concern.

REVISED STORY OF ROBBERY.

The revised story of the party, as Inspector Coughlin got it, was that the guests assembled in Carman's apartment on the fifth floor about 4 p. m., played cards until 6:30, had supper, and resumed their game about 9.

The party continued until the New Year was ushered in, after which Coughlin said he had learned Mrs. Schoellkopf announced she intended to return home alone, despite the hour and the fact that her hotel was half a mile away.

According to the police Mrs. Schoellkopf descended to the next floor, where she claimed to have met a man introduced to her at the party. She then was drawn into the fourth floor apartment and robbed. The police denied that she had been drugged or chloroformed.

The police said Carman had told them that with two apartments on his hands, he had advertised for tenants for one and had leased it to three men whom he described as actors.

DANCER DENIES GUILT.

L. Carman, dapper, slim dandy of the vaudeville stage, passed a restless night in jail, but sticked himself up today and again told the police that he knew nothing of the robbery. Mrs. Schoellkopf is the wife of a Buffalo financier and philanthropist, whose wealth is estimated at more than twenty millions.

Both the Buffalo millionaire and his wife today, as last night, stoutly defend the dancer.

"I'm sure he didn't do it," said the wife. "My husband and I trust him and we know him quite well. He traveled with us in Europe last Summer. My husband paid all his expenses to come with us for companionship."

J. B. Hirsh, insurance broker, gave out a version of the robbery on behalf of the Schoellkopfs. He said: "The party had been arranged at the home of a friend of the Schoellkopfs, but owing to illness, the place was changed to Carman's studio. Besides Mrs. Schoellkopf and Carman, there were four married couples present. They were playing bridge when, around 11 o'clock when they noticed a peculiar odor, like ammonia, but soon forgot about it.

STRANGER APPEARS.

"Shortly before midnight a man, who said he lived in the same apartment house, called and said that he was alone in his apartment and felt pretty lonesome for a New Year's night and wanted to join the party. He was welcomed to the circle. He brought in a bottle of champagne, which they drank. The stranger bought a $10 stack of chips. Then a $25 stack, which he soon lost in a game of poker which was started. The stranger then disappeared.

"Mrs. Schoellkopf suddenly com-

FAMILY OF SIX DESERTED

MRS. RALPH A. HARDING AND HER SON, MELVIN

Mrs. Harding, who lives in Malden, accuses her husband of desertion. He is also accused of having another wife, a former waitress. All hands are in Woburn court today to give testimony.

HARDING FACES TWO WIVES IN WOBURN COURT

fell, in a voice that spoke of years of misery, the story of her daughter's past. She said Mary was known as Mrs. Hebbard, Myrtle Wombelt, Myrtle McCarron and Philomena Wombolt. There was another child born, this one at Newton, in 1916. Armand C. Poirier was ordered to pay $300 to support this child.

Mrs. Leavitt said she was sure that Harding was not the father of the two-year-old infant produced in court.

Mrs. Ralph A. Harding of Malden, the real wife of the suave co-defendant in the case, took the stand. Her story was one of indifference on the part of the man who later deserted her and her five children.

Of these children, she said, the oldest was twenty-two and the youngest was five. She said that four years ago she told her husband she was through with him. She reiterated that in court.

She said she never expected to live with him again. If there was anybody to be punished, she said, it ought to be Harding, and not the Wombelt girl, who was only one of many in his life.

Then Mrs. Ella M. Hansen of Somerville took the stand and testified that Harding and Mary come to her home late in 1921 and lived there as man and wife. In March, 1922, Mrs. Hansen testified, a child was born to Mary, which was named Alma May Harding. She didn't know what had become of this child.

On top of all this, Harding made a statement, through his attorney, that he had a handsome home in Weymouth, with capacious grounds around it. That home, he said, was at the disposal of Mary, and of her son, Joseph, and of her daughter, Alma, and any other children she may have had, regardless of the paternity of the children.

Mrs. Harding, watching, smiled tiredly as she heard this offer come from the man who has refused to support her and her five children.

Judge Morton sentenced Mary Wombolt to six months at Sherborn, and Harding he fined $50.

"It is a pity that the law is so constituted that I am forced to send her to jail and let him off with a fine," he said. "But that's all that is left open to me. The woman in the case always seems to get the worst of it."

CURLEY SUFFERING ATTACK OF GRIPPE

Mayor Curley left his office at City Hall this afternoon for his home in Jamaica Way suffering from a slight attack of the grippe. He had been suffering from a cold for the past two or three days and at last had to resort to medical treatment. His brother, John J. Curley, city treasurer, who is at the City Hospital, recovering from an operation, is improving rapidly.

Jane Addams to Demand Europe End Strife

London, Jan. 2.—Miss Jane Addams of Chicago today departed for Paris to demand, in the name of the women of the world that the allied Premiers settle at once the German indemnity problem.

"I am a representative of the Women's International League," said Miss Addams. "I intend to see the premiers to urge upon them the necessity of an immediate settlement of the problem in such a way as to give assurances and a guarantee of lasting peace.

"I am gratified to find throughout Europe an intense feeling in favor of disarmament to make future wars impossible. Even among the French there are unmistakable signs that hatreds are dying."

POISON LIQUOR ADDS ANOTHER TO DEATH LIST

One more name was added to Greater Boston's "poison liquor" list today with the death of James Lane, of No. 248 Third street, Cambridge. Lane was found dead in bed.

Seven others are in hospitals, one of them, an aged woman, in a dying condition.

Lane had been drinking heavily, according to neighbors, and when he failed to appear at his usual time this morning, others went to his room to call him for work. He was found stretched out, dead. A physician pronounced death due to alcoholism.

SUN YAT SEN'S ARMY TO ATTACK CANTON

Shanghai, Jan. 3.—A probable explanation of the Canton government's recognition of the central government at Peking is given, according to Reuters, in a message from Canton, which says the Provinces of Yunnan and Kwangsi have formed an alliance with the Constitutionalists in Kaangtung—the supporters of Sun Yat Sen—and are preparing to attack Canton under the leadership of the Yunnanese general Chang Kai-Shu.

Wuchow, in Kwangsi Province, 120 miles west of Canton, is reported to have been occupied by the Yunnan-Kwangsi troops on December 24. The Cantonese army has declared blockaded.

TO CARRY IRISH DISPUTE TO WASHINGTON

New York, Jan. 3.—Irish Republican representatives immediately will carry to Washington their campaign against consulates presided over by representatives of the Free State government, it was announced today by Laurence Ginnell, local consular representative of the De Valera faction.

Mr. Ginnell declared he would leave tonight or tomorrow for the capital to make demand upon Professor Timothy A. Smiddy, Free State minister there, that he turn over his official books and papers to representatives of the Republicans.

Professor Smiddy, still in New York, was expected to leave immediately for his Washington office to anticipate the announced visit of the Republicans.

WAR WIDOWS' RIGHTS.

"The act returned herewith extends the marriage period to June 27, 1915, and provides that after that date any marriage for two years prior to a veteran's death shall make the widow a beneficiary to a pension of $30 per month for life.

"Frankly, I do not recognize any public obligation to pension women who now, nearly sixty years after the Civil War, become the wives of veterans of that war.

"The government has so many defenders to whom generous treatment is due that Congress will find it necessary to consider all phases of our obligations when making provisions for any one group.

"The compensation paid widows of World War veterans—those who share the shock and sorrows of the conflict—amounts to $24 per month. It would be indefensible to insist on that limitation if we are to pay $600 per year to widows who marry veterans sixty years after the Civil War."

WOMAN NEAR DEATH IN SOMERVILLE FIRE

Mrs. Edith James of No. 34 Allen street, Somerville, was badly burned this afternoon when papers she was trying to dispose of in the kitchen range flared up and ignited her clothing and the woodwork of the kitchen near the stove. A telephone call brought Ladder 1. Ladderman Fred Schults applied first aid to the woman, who was in considerable pain. She had succeeded, however, in putting out the fire itself. Damage to the house was slight.

HARVEY IS GUEST AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 3.—Ambassador Harvey is the guest of President Harding at the White House on his first visit to Washington since going to his London post.

Since his arrival last night from New York, where he was taken directly to the White House, Colonel Harvey has made no statement on the purposes connected with his visit.

HOUSE PASSES BILL MINUS FREE SEEDS

Washington, Jan. 3.—The Agricultural Appropriation Bill, carrying $68,931,513, was passed today by the House after Speaker Gillett had thrown out on a point of order a motion to send it back to committee with directions to include $360,000 for Congressional free seed distribution.

WARNS OF NEW WAR 'WIDOWS'

Declares New Bill Would Cost U. S. More Than 50 Billions

Washington, Jan. 3.—President Harding today vetoed the Burson Bill, providing increased pensions for veterans of the Civil, Indian and Mexican wars.

The President objected, he said in his veto message, to the provision granting pensions to widows of Civil War veterans who married up to June 27, 1915. He also disapproved of the discrimination between widows of World and Civil War veterans, the latter class being accorded much larger payments.

$165,000,000 A YEAR.

The veto message says: "If the act were limited to its provisions in behalf of the surviving participants in the Mexican and Civil Wars, and widows of the War of 1812, it would still be without ample justification. The commissioner of pensions estimates its additional cost to the Treasury to be about $165,000,000 annually and I venture the prediction of an ultimate pension outlay in the half century before us of $50,000,000,000.

"The act makes no pretence of considerations for the needy or dependent. It is an outright bestowal with a heedlessness for the government's financial problems which is a discouragement to every effort to reduce expenditures and relieve the burdens of taxation.

"The more particular objection, however, lies in its loose provision for pensioning widows. The existing law makes the widow of a Civil War veteran eligible to a pension if she had married him prior to June 27, 1905. In other words, marriage within forty years of the end of the Civil War gives a veteran's widow a good title to a pension.

politan affairs, which will consider the Boston city charter changes and which regulates all the broad policies of the enormous Metropolitan District.

IMPORTANT COMMITTEES.

She was also appointed to the committee on State Administration, which formulates the organization of the State government in all its important branches.

Miss Donaldson, who for more than thirty years has been a schoolteacher, was appointed by Speaker Young to serve on the Committee on Education, which originates all the educational laws and policies and she also was given a place on the Committee on Public Health, which ordains the protective health measures affecting the people of the State.

Any veteran male member of the Legislature would have been glad to accept the committee assignments given to the two women.

Miss Donaldson, prior to the formal opening of the House, attended the caucus of Republican members and Mrs. FitzGerald was elected secretary of the Democratic caucus.

SOLEMN ENTRY.

Their entry to the Hall of Representatives was under unusual conditions. Practically all the 240 members had taken their seats. The galleries above were crowded, special space having been assigned in the Speaker's private gallery for the relatives and intimate friends of the two women.

Mrs. FitzGerald and Miss Donaldson entered the hall while the roll of members was being called. Each walked quietly to a seat in the fourth division, on the north side of the hall. There was a respectful quiet as the two took their places, the cynosure of a thousand pairs of eyes.

Each arose and quietly announced her name and presence to the House clerk. There was not a suggestion of a loud demonstration; the importance of the epoch-making event was fully attested by the tense silence.

HOLD A RECEPTION.

Miss Donaldson wore a plain, blue serge dress and a large picture hat of black satin. Mrs. FitzGerald, too, was dressed in an afternoon dress of blue. Her attractive grayish-brown hair was unadorned. At the close of the session the two women held an informal reception in the fourth floor room, which has been arranged for their convenience.

Representative Edward F. Harrington of Fall River, dean of the House in point of continuous service, was re-elected Democratic floor leader at the secret caucus of the 70 Democratic House members over the opposition of Representatives James W. Hayes and John J. Heffernan, both of Boston. The vote was: Harrington, 38; Hayes, 18, and Heffernan, 15.

The caucus was thrown into an uproar when Representative William S. Conroy, who for years has represented the same Fall River district with Harrington, charged that the veteran legislator "has been faithless to human-welfare legislation and has betrayed the rights of working men and women."

"PERSONAL ROW."

Harrington jumped to his feet and declared: "This man is actuated by personal malice and spite. It is a personal row which never should be aired in this caucus, especially before so many new members."

Harrington defended himself of the charges and later issued a statement in which he said Conroy's grievance was based on Harrington's refusal to support him for Mayor of Fall River. Harrington supported Talbot, who was elected mayor and assumed office at the local inauguration yesterday.

The House was called to order by Representative Harrison H. Atwood of Dorchester, the dean in point of early service, who first was a member in 1885. The Senate session was assembled under command of Senator Walter E. McLane of Fall River, who has been in the Senate the past twelve years.

President Frank G. Allen of the Senate and Speaker B. Loring Young of the House were re-elected.

ALL RE-ELECTED.

William H. Sanger of Boston was re-elected Senate clerk and James W. Kimball of Swampscott House clerk for his twenty-sixth term. The Senate re-elected Rev. Dr. E. A. Horton of Boston as chaplain and the House Rev. William F. Dunnault of East Boston. Both branches re-elected Charles O. Holt of Somerville as Sergeant-at-Arms.

Representative John C. Hull of Leominster was appointed Republican floor leader of the House by Speaker Young. Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston became chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which appropriates $40,000,000 a year, and Representative Victor Francis Jewett of Lowell will again serve as the Republican "whip."

Senator Wellington Wells of Boston was named by President Allen as Republican floor leader of the upper branch. Senator McLane was appointed chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

President Allen received the votes of the seven Democratic Senators as well as the thirty-three Republicans. Speaker Young received the unanimous Republican vote. Two Democrats, Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware and John Mitchell of Springfield, also voted for him. The other seventy-seven Democrats, with the exception of Conroy, who did not vote, cast their votes for Harrington.

BOY RUNAWAY IS SOUGHT IN BOSTON

The Boston police today were asked to search for Raymond Spaulding Faifield, fifteen, who ran away from his home in Moosup, Ct., telling students of high school that he was bound for this city. The boy is about five feet, nine inches, weighs around 148 pounds; wore a dark, belted overcoat, light gray cap, brown shoes and black stockings. He had $11 with him.

PERSONNEL OF COMMITTEES ANNOUNCED

President Allen of the Senate and Speaker Young of the House today appointed these chairmen of the important legislative committees:

Highways and Motor Vehicles—Senator Charles M. Austin of Somerville and Representative James D. Bentley of Swampscott.

Insurance—Senator James G. Moran of Marshfield and Representative Frederick A. Warren of Wilbraham.

Labor and Industry—Senator Charles F. Howard of Reading and Representative Frank B. Phinney of Boston.

SLAIN YOUTH'S PARENTS TO SUE WARD

Haverhill, Jan. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. George Peters, parents of Clarence Peters, of whose murder Walter S. Ward has been cleared by New York courts, will bring civil action against Ward. This announcement was made today by Attorney M. L. Sullivan, counsel for the Peters family.

In referring to the dropping of the murder charge against the millionaire vice-president of the Ward Baking Company, Attorney Sullivan said: "We believe there are just laws to proceed civilly in New York State even if the criminal case has been dropped."

"Ward has got to be tried," said the father of Peters.

CHILD PREY OF RICH PLANTER

Mer Rouge Crimes Followed Kidnaping of Girl by Band From Aged Suitor

Winnfield, La., Jan. 3 (By International News Service).—The eternal triangle was thrust into the limelight today in the Mer Rouge murder mystery.

The Dalton Weekly, semi-official organ of the Ku Klux Klan in Morehouse, today declared a wealthy Mer Rouge landowner and merchant brought on the killings by his interest in the youthful daughter of a tenant on one of his farms.

"The first incident, which was the real beginning of the whole affair in Morehouse parish, was the case of a well known and wealthy Mer Rouge merchant," said the article. "In addition to having a wife and family, he moved a poor white mother on one of his small farms who had a daughter about twelve years old.

STOLE GIRL AWAY.

"His interest in the child increased with her age and by the time she was fourteen he had furnished her with all manner of finery and had also given her a car.

"The Klan or some body of men, evidently of Bastrop, stole this girl away from him and sent her to an aunt in Little Rock, Ark., whom they had notified in advance to receive her. The man immediately aligned himself permanently with the Anti-Klan element.

"The torch was lighted. It was the first shot in the battle between the forces of morality."

"Poker playing was the chief pastime in Mer Rouge, the games being run openly on the main street of the town," the article added.

"Whiskey was as accessible as water. The town had struck the bottom of degradation. The marshal was the best poker player in town. No moral force was at work."

More Troops on Duty in Mer Rouge District

Bastrop, La., Jan. 3.—The movement of additional State troops to Bastrop to join the four companies already here and at Mer Rouge, and efforts to locate Harold Teegerstrom, carbon plant time keeper, whose mysterious disappearance has furnished a new sensation in the investigation of masked band operations, today featured the situation in Moorehouse Parish.

A cavalry detachment, forty men with full horse equipment, arrived aboard a special train from Jennings.

Clarence V. Teegerstrom, brother of the missing boy, said at Monroe that Harold had escaped from his captors and was hiding. Clarence said he had received a message from his brother saying he was safe and would communicate later.

Extradition of Klan Case Doctor Held Up

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 3.—Governor Albert Ritchie today refused to recognize the requisition for Dr. E. M. McKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge, La., arrested here last Tuesday in connection with the Morehouse parish murders and kidnapings on the grounds that the affidavits were not made on actual knowledge of the alleged crimes.

The executive sent a telegram to Governor Parker of Louisiana outlining his decision in the case. His message stated Dr. McKoin was now willing to return to Louisiana voluntarily, but could not do so until released by the court.

Hurt on Stage

MARIE JARITZA

OPERA STAR IS HURT IN FALL ON STAGE

New York, Jan. 3.—Marie Jeritza, Metropolitan Opera star, was painfully injured by "fainting" in "Thais," it became known today.

The prima donna has since been undergoing regular massage treatment at the hands of Dr. Adolf Lorens, celebrated bloodless surgeon.

When Jeritza, in simulation of an hysterical attack, reeled a few steps backward and fell with a crash, the impact was so hard that the beholders gasped. Then came the comment that this was just a bit of sensational acrobatics, too crude to achieve the supreme artistic touch.

But when the singer appeared smiling on being recalled, she received the greatest applause of the evening.

COUPLE PEY FINES AND ESCAPE JAIL

Fred D. Dearborn, sixty-nine year old Middleton farmer, and Mrs. Agnes Hawthorn, twenty-eight years, who narrowly escaped having to remain in Lynn jail overnight for non-payment of $100 fines each, appeared in Lynn court today and paid their fines, which had been imposed for statutory charges.

Girl, 22, Married to Man Paralyzed for Life

New York, Jan. 3.—Sitting in his wheel chair, a paralytic for life, Henry Clay Pennell, thirty-six years old, of Lawton, Okla., friend of Al Jennings, the once notorious outlaw, was married at the Madison Square Hotel to Miss May Norma King, twenty-two, of Long Branch, N. J.

Pennell, who is touring the country to get the Elks to spend more of their money on their crippled and deserving members, was an Oklahoma ranch owner, horseman and cowboy in his days of health.

SALARY TOO LOW FOR HAGENBECK

Some time ago the Boston American printed an item to the effect that Lorenz Hagenbeck of Hamburg, Germany, had received from Park Commissioner James S. Shea of Boston an offer to become curator of the zoological garden.

The American is in receipt of a letter from Herr Hagenbeck, in which he courteously turns down the offer, although offering his assistance in whatever way he might be able to aid.

In reference to the proffered salary of $2,500 a year, Hagenbeck writes:

"At the rate of $2,500 a year we could never consider such an offer. We have more than 500 employes, and a good many of them receive more than $10,000 a year."

Who said Germany was poverty-stricken?

CONFERENCE OF ALLIES FACES COLLAPSE

Paris, Jan. 3 (By the Associated Press).—The British delegation to the allied conference today practically decided to accept the French reparations plans as a basis for discussion, provided Premiere Poincare agreed to discuss the British plan.

In this way Prime Minister Bonar Law would seek to place the burden of responsibility for a breakup of the conference on the shoulders of Premier Poincare.

The French Cabinet today instructed Premier Poincare to move in the conference the adoption of the French plan as the minimum acceptable to France. In the event the meeting does not accept that plan, Premier Poincare was directed to ask the conference to register formally lack of agreement among the allies.

Premier Poincare, after the Cabinet meeting, said the British plan displeased everybody, not only French, but Italians and Belgians, and the proposal that the Bank of England put its hands on the gold left there by allies as security for loans was alarming.

The premier reiterated that the French plan was the minimum acceptable to France and represented the maximum of concessions France would make.

HALF A MILLION IN RUSSIA FACE HUNGER DEATH

Moscow, Jan. 3 (By International News Service).—Nearly half a million men, women and children are doomed to death from starvation in the famine districts of Russia before the Winter is over, according to conservative estimates made here today.

Despite optimistic reports given out by Bolshevist officials, it is known that nearly 3,000,000 persons in the starvation zones are so hard pressed for food that they are living upon rations scarcely fit for animals.

A Grateful Mother Relates How Mentho-Laxene Saved One Of Her Children

While Another Passed Away With Pneumonia Before She Knew About This Splendid Cough and Cold Remedy.

Mrs. Kathryn Schmidt, 123 Procter St., 20th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa., writes under date of Dec. 17, 1921: "I can highly recommend Mentho-Laxene. One bottle cured my child, 5 years of age, of severe bronchial cough, that he contracted with a cold last October. I was terribly discouraged and I had one Doctor's prescription filled after another and tried different medicines of the ready-made kind, but everything failed to check the dreadful coughing. Then it was I tried your Mentho-Laxene, which I think is great and I would not be without a bottle of it on hand. I am deeply sorry I did not know of it sooner. It would have saved me many a doctor bill and perhaps the life of my younger child which had started away with pneumonia, contracted from a cold just two months ago. You may publish my note if you wish, for I think every mother should know what a good ole may have to keep her children well, in this wonderful, home-made cough syrup, MENTHO-LAXENE."

Mentho-Laxene gives marvelous results to children with acute colds and stubborn coughs. It has equally marvelous results to every aged people whose cases have become chronic. Many asthmatic victims are now cured from this home-made mixture than from expensive medicines and prescriptions of various kinds.

Concentrated Essence

Mentho-Laxene is an Essence, powerfully concentrated pure medicines, (50% stronger than ready-made cough syrups) You take it with sugar and make syrup into a full pint, and it is still stronger and more quickly effective than any you have ever used, and very pleasant to taste.

And the saving amounts to about $6.50, for a pint is equal to 12 or 13 bottles of ready-made syrups that cost 50 to 60 cents each.

"Double Acting."

Mentho-Laxene works differently, but it is super-powerful! Help to the system and antiseptic, too. It not only checks a cough and cold, but destroys the germs and rids the system of congestion, inflammation, catarrhal poisons, phlegm and other bad secretions. It stops the sneezing and snuffling, the tickling of throat and wheezing; it checks the formation of cold and catarrh secretion, which often causes severe headache, opens and clears the nasal passages, soothes and heals the raw membranes, and stops the nerve "pressure" that causes coughing. It affords great relief in whooping cough too, reducing the severity of the "strangling choking spells."

If everybody could experience the benefits of Mentho-Laxene just once, there would not be much of any other cough medicine sold.

Scion of Portuguese Royalty Sells Insurance; Russian General Lands in Steerage

New York Jan. 3.—Prince Miguel De Braganza, son of Dom Miguel Braganza, pretender to the throne of Portugal and grandson of King Miguel, who reigned over Portugal from 1823 to 1834, is selling life insurance in New York.

He is working on a commission basis for an insurance company, William Rhinelander Stewart, Jr., the Prince's brother-in-law, is a member of the firm.

Prince Miguel reports punctually every morning and observes the same rules that govern other solicitors for the firm. He said he went to work because "nearly everyone over here works."

His marriage to Anita Stewart in 1909 at Tulloch Castle, Scotland, was a brilliant event. Miss Stewart was reported to have received a wedding gift of $2,000,000 from her mother, Mrs. James Henry Smith.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 3.—General Alexander Ivanoff, who in 1917 commanded the armies of the Czar of Russia, arrived here today as a steerage passenger on the Iyo Maru. He announced his intention of staying in Seattle, learning English and doing something to make a living.

After the fall of the imperial Russian government, General Ivanoff became a fugitive and made his way to Japan. He arrived dressed in a rough blue sweater, an unimpressive suit of clothes and a pair of American army shoes.

Boston Smart Set Joins Winter Colony in South, Says Betty Alden

MISS ISABELLA GRANDIN

By BETTY ALDEN

THE Winter colony at Camden, South Carolina, promises to be larger than ever this season, with golfing and shooting among the most popular sports.

Mrs. John L. Grandin and her two sons, Richard and John L. Grandin, Jr., of the Fenway, recently joined the Boston coterie at Camden, where they are stopping at the Kirkwood. Miss Isabella Grandin, the youthful daughter of the house, is remaining in Boston, where the schoolroom claims her. She is, by the way, one of the most skilled equestriennes of the younger set. It is rarely that she misses taking part in any important equine event, where she attracts no little attention for her clever horsemanship. In the accompanying picture she is seen just after one of her favorite mounts has added another blue ribbon to his collection.

THE Quincy A. Shaws, Jr. (Augustine Van Wickle), and Miss Margaret Norton, all of Boston, have been spending several days at the Harrod Inn in Stockbridge.

Philip Stoans of No. 347 Commonwealth avenue, who spent the holidays at the Harrod Inn, is sailing this week from New York for London. Mr. Means, a Harvard '15 man, plans to spend the coming Summer in Stockbridge, I believe.

"MIKE" VANDERBILT—or Harold S. Vanderbilt, as he is more formally known—who spends his Summers at Beverly Farms; Eugene Van R. Thayer, formerly of Boston and member of a Lost of clubs here; Hamilton Potter, who's president of the Harvard Cercle Francais; as well as Joseph Laroque, Jr., and Minturn Sedgwick of Boston were a few of the very large number who attended the mammoth ball which Frank Munsey gave the other evening in New York at the Ritz-Caciton in honor of Miss Betty Hammill and Miss Cornelia T. Livingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston. The latter is, I believe, niece of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer of Boston.

A host of dinners preceded the dance, which was undoubtedly one of the most "swagger" debutante affairs given this season in Gotham. Which is saying quite a good deal, for this year the buds are having an unusually hectic season in New York as well as in Boston.

After the guests had danced for awhile and supper had been served at small tables in the main dining room and palm room, that famous pair, Gallagher and Sheean of the Follies, Charlie King and the trio from "Little Nellie Kelly" and Clayton and Edwards, the latter rendering "The Blues" among other things, all helped to furnish an "all-star" vaudeville program. Later, of course, the debs and their cavaliers retired to the ballroom for some more terpsichorean exercise, which they kept up until the "wee, sma' hours" were no longer so very "wee."

MRS. HENRY PARKMAN of Commonwealth avenue was of the party who, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey G. Parker entertained at a large breakfast at their home in Washington. The affair was in honor of Miss Cecile McCallum and their son, Chauncey G. Parker, Jr., who are to be married this afternoon. The company included not only the twenty young people of the bridal party, but a number of others.

Mrs. Parkman (Frances Parker) is the mother of Miss Penelope Parkman, president of the Vincent Club, who is very busy just now with plans for the club's annual show.

THE JOHN T. BURNETTS, formerly of the exclusive colony in Southboro, Mass., are spending the present season in town, where they are at No. 7 Exeter street.

I HEAR that Mrs. Joshua Montgomery Sears gave a musicale the other afternoon at her residence at No. 12 Arlington. On this occasion Mrs. Sears, who is widely known for her interest in music and the arts, had as artist no less a person than Paderewski.

WOMAN ARRESTED AS THIEF LEADER

San Francisco, Jan. 3.—Miss Florence Grant, "Queen of the local ring of thieves," is under arrest. The police believe Miss Grant was the "brains" of the outfit composed of seven negroes and white men, who looted stores and homes of more than $100,000 worth of valuables. Miss Grant claims that she was merely caretaker of the home of one of the gang and did not participate in any of the thefts.

FIRE IN GARAGE DESTROYS AUTO

Twenty employes with portable extinguishers and buckets of sand fought a fire in a garage at No. 1255 Boylston street today until the fire department arrived. The firemen extinguished the blaze with chemicals after twenty minutes' fight.

The blaze started when a spark from the battery of a Ford sedan ignited gas from a leaking tank in the machine. The auto burst into flames and was a mass of junk when the smoke had cleared away.

CABLE BRIEFS

London.—Major-General George H. Harries, of the American Military Order of the World War, laid a wreath on the cenotaph bearing the inscription: "Bound by Ties of Language, Race, Love and Rich, to Your Liberty, and Battle Comradeship. Those Whom We Salute Are Ours Even as They Are Yours."

Paris.—King Albert of Belgium, accompanied by the Duke of Rohant, visited President Millerand before the cabinet meeting today. A great crowd around the Elysee Palace gave the King an enthusiastic reception. Military honors were also accorded him.

Vienna.—Albert H. Washburn, the American Minister, with the sanction of President Harding, will preside over the arbitration commission formed to settle disputes between Jugoslavia and Austria relative to pre-war contracts, according to the Freie Press.

Brussels.—Premier Theunis has decided to resign after the Paris reparations conference on account of the dispute over the use of the Flemish language in the University of Ghent, says the Etoile Belge.

London.—Reports that have been paraded for a year that the Prince of Wales would marry an Italian Princess were officially denied today through International News Service. The Prince's private secretary called the report "nonsense."

Rome.—Premier Benito Mussolini today dismissed the prefects of Turin and Verona for failure to deal stornly enough with combatants in Fascisti Communists riots.

GIRL ALLEGES POLICEMAN ABUSED HER

Abuse by a Boston policeman is charged by pretty Eustacia Reid, twenty-four years old, proprietor of a lodging house at No. 138 Worcester street, who says she will apply today for warrants charging Patrolman William F. D. Lee of Station 5 with larceny and assault and battery.

Miss Reid says Officer Lee entered her house without a warrant and demanded clothes being held as security for unpaid rent, the property of lodgers she evicted some weeks ago. He was accompanied by a young woman companion, according to Miss Reid, whom she recognized as a visitor in the past of her nonpaying roomers.

"He dragged me through the streets, assaulted me in a doorway and arrested me as a drunkard," the young woman declared.

"At the station house I was refused the right to call a bail commissioner or examination by my personal physician to prove I was not intoxicated. Later, the police called a doctor, who informed me that he found absolutely no indication that I had been drinking.

Miss Reid was arraigned in Municipal Court, charged with drunkenness, violation of the lodging house laws and larceny of a bag of clothing. The two last complaints were entered against her as a result of the story told by Helen Channell, the young woman alleged to have accompanied Officer Lee to Miss Reid's establishment.

MISS EUSTACIE REID

Lodging house keeper alleges patrolman of Station 5 attacked her in a doorway after arresting her on drunkenness charge. She also says she was refused bail or examination by her personal physician.

BATES SWINGS OFFICIAL AXE; FIRES SIX

Gustave B. Bates, newly-elected Mayor of Quincy, started his administration today by swinging the official axe.

The first to lose his official head was Frederick E. Tupper, chairman of the Board of Assessors. He was replaced by Edward J. Fagan. Next the Mayor fired Tupper's two associates, Charles McFarlane and Michael T. Sullivan. They were replaced by John J. Bestgen and J. Winthrop Pratt.

The axe then landed on Samuel Amen, Overseer of the Poor. Leslie K. Green, former clerk in the Registry of Motor Vehicles Department, got his job. Frank W. Lints, inspector of wires, then got the sack. Alexander J. Souden stepped into his office.

Next on the list to go was William Jones, superintendent of streets. Two men were appointed as associated superintendents to take his place. They are James Donovan and Daniel O'Connor.

The axe is still swinging. The word has gone out that there is to be a thorough clean-up in all departments. There is much trembling in boots as the word is awaited by those slated to go, and much licking of chops by those who guessed right on the recent election.

OUSTS HUSBAND, BUT PREVENTS SUICIDE

Because his wife told him she was through with him forever, Edward Cunningham, twenty-five years old, a veteran of the World War, attempted to end his life by inhaling illuminating gas at his home, No. 1370 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

His wife discovered him in their bedroom, gas escaping from a jet in the room and prevented him from accomplishing his purpose.

"Yes, I put him out of the house," the young wife said, "I told him he must chose between me and booze. He seems to have chosen the latter. I am through with him forever.

E. Cunningham.

LYNN GIRL DISCOVERS MISSING HUSBAND HAD 2 OTHER "WIVES"

COURT TO UNRAVEL TANGLE

If Divorce Does Not Solve Problem Inez Little Will Ask for Annulment

A third wife has appeared in the marital tangle in which divorce action against Frank Little of Newburyport is brought by Mrs. Inez Steeves Little of No. 172A Washington street, Lynn.

Mrs. Little, who married after a week's whirlwind courtship, brought her action three years after her husband left her. All that time she knew that he still had an undivorced wife before she married him.

Now another woman whom Little, it is charged, "married," makes the third "wife" in the most amazing marital web that the Salem courts have had to unravel in a long time.

Inez S. Little

Little, trap drummer in a moving picture theatre orchestra, disappeared in the Spring of 1917. He had married Miss Steeves in Rutland, Vt., in January, 1917. The young wife shortly afterwards went to visit friends in Montreal and on her return found that her new husband had vanished.

Then she learned, she asserts, that Little had lived in a Newburyport lodging house with another woman whom he introduced as his wife, and two days afterwards discovered that still a third woman calling Little her husband, had visited Newburyport, making inquiries about the missing musician.

SOUGHT FOR NEWS

The divorce proceedings will come up in Salem next week.

"After the marriage," she says in a statement, "I went home because I was ill, and I used to hear from Frank from the different towns his company played in. We had been married in December. By the following March I was convinced he had deserted me and I sought his mother in Newburyport for news of him.

FINDS HE IS MARRIED.

"His mother sent me to see Mrs. J. A. Conley, who conducts a boarding house at No. 7 Winter street, Newburyport, where Frank had lived, and there I learned that only a little while before another woman had gone there asking the same questions. I was stunned. I was almost convinced then that my husband had not only deserted me, but had tricked me.

"For a time I thought of charging him with bigamy, but I decided to wait and now that a sufficient period has passed, I have filed divorce papers, asking for a divorce on grounds of desertion. I have also alleged that he has refused and neglected to provide for my maintenance."

last. His age was given as thirty one, his birthplace as Missouri, his height six feet two inches and his weight 156 pounds. His normal weight is 190.

At the time of his entrance into the institution, the records state, he had been addicted to the use of morphine, using from three to six grains a day for a period of two years.

His general health was described as having been fair but at the date of his appearance for treatment it was recorded as "very poor."

Wife Tells How Reid Took Drug While Ill

By DOROTHY DAVENPORT REID.

To understand fully the condition of mind which made Wally a prey to drugs, you must realize that he was a chemist of considerable experience.

When he went to New York in the Summer of 1921, his health was none too good.

All sorts of people began dropping into his apartment—men and women from the studios, from the newspapers and from everywhere.

And so elaborate parties were given in Wally's apartment without his consent.

His rest during this time was necessarily fitful. His insomnia persisted. And, to add to his troubles, the change in climate brought on a severe cold, during which, for more than a week, his temperature hovered around 103.

Foolishly, of course, but because he was very loyal, he insisted upon working steadily. During this severe cold he was attended by a New York physician whose name I do not know, but who kept Wally on his feet by administering drugs.

He came home the last of July and appeared in the best of trim. It must have been two weeks or more before I suspected he was using drugs. Wild stories came to me—stories which then were going the rounds of Hollywood.

Yet during the worst of this terrible time he harped to his friends and acquaintances on the drug evil. "Keep off the stuff!" I have heard him say it time and again.

He preached long sermons to Bill, our boy — tender, whimsical sermons, I am sure the youngster didn't understand. He seemed his old personality only when he was with Bill.

ASKS AID TO FIND MISSING WIFE

Lawrence, Jan. 3.—William Morrel, of No. 80 Allston street, today appealed to the police for aid in the search for his eighteen-year-old wife, Elsie, who left home leaving a 16-months-old baby behind. The girl is five feet three inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has light brown hair, blue eyes and rosy cheeks. She wore a light colored sport coat and a purple and black hat. Her husband says he knows no reason for her sudden departure.

aware of the fact that an uppercut can be delivered at close quarters, and, properly administered, is more valuable than a blackjack or Jimmy, which requires a considerable, uninterrupted swing.

THE SUPREME COURT JUSTICES of Florida, tossing a coin to select a chief justice, take you back to old laws under which "the judgment of God" was supposed to settle every matter satisfactorily.

Then a man accused of murder was acquitted if he could challenge and kill the man that accused him.

NOW THAT WE conceive, faintly, the size of the universe and the task that Iris, ruler, must attend to, supervising the birth of solar systems in the depths of the Great Nebula, for instance, we can hardly imagine divine omniscience personally attending to the "flipping" of a coin to make it fall on this side or that.

THE FLORIDA JUSTICES are all good men, however, so it doesn't matter which one wins.

They have read perhaps Rabelais' interesting story of the judge that always decided his cases, after patiently hearing both sides, by shaking dice. He explained some bad decisions in his old age by saying that his eyesight was getting bad; he could not see the dice plainly.

Pantagruel forgave him.

plained of feeling indisposed and left the apartment alone, saying she wanted fresh air.

"That was the last seen of her by the guests until after the robbery. She told me later that she was walking down the winding stair toward the street when a man stepped out from a doorway and tied a handkerchief saturated with chloroform over her face, holding his hand over her mouth so she could not scream.

BOUND WITH ROPES.

"Two more men joined the first and they carried the woman into a studio and bound her with ropes and towels on a bed and removed her jewelry. They also took her hand bag containing $1,400. One kept a revolver pressed at her head and threatened to kill her.

"Mrs. Reboellkopf later managed to loosen the bonds and crawled up the stairs, notifying Carman and his guests of what had happened. They immediately telephoned the police."

TO RESUME PROBE OF TURKEY 'BRIBE'

The investigation into the charges of an alleged attempt to bribe Deputy Health Commissioner Patrick H. Mullowney with a "gift" of a turkey, a box of cigars and two $100 bills, will be continued tomorrow afternoon by the Finance Commission. Abraham S. Kubitsky of the Richmond Live Poultry Company of Richmond street is said to have presented Mullowney with the "gifts."

FREIGHTER 'LOST' 24 DAYS

Halifax N. S., Jan. 3. (By International News Service).—Fears were felt in shipping circles today that the freighter Bretonia, twenty-four days out from St. Pierre for New York, has met with disaster at sea.

Attempts to get in communication with wireless all have failed. It is feared that the vessel went down in the recent North Atlantic storms.

MISSING REVERE BOY IS SOUGHT

Vincent Del Vecchio of No. 221 Proctor street, Revere, left home the day following Christmas and has dropped out of sight. He is frenzied mother, Mrs. Nicoletta Del Vecchio, has appealed to the Boston American to find her boy Vincent, or "Jimmy," as he was better known, has long had a fondness for the navy. When he left home he did not take any of his best clothes. He wore a brown overcoat, tan shoes, a blue roll-collar sweater and a navy watch-cap.

Vincent (Jimmy) Del Vecchio

He is about five feet tall and dark complexioned. The Revere police have also been asked to aid in the search, but efforts to locate the boy through remarks dropped to his friends have failed.

2 FIREMEN HURT IN EVERETT BLAZE

Two firemen were badly hurt and the business section of Everett was threatened by a two-alarm fire that swept through the Strand Theatre today, causing damage that will probably reach $50,000.

The injured are:

Captain John E. O'Brien, Central fire station.

Hoseman John Burke, Central fire station.

The fire broke out in the rear of the theatre, near the heating apparatus. When firemen arrived, they found flames shooting through the entire rear section and also in the balcony.

A second alarm was immediately sounded, bringing apparatus from all over the city.

Captain O'Brien, in charge of Combination 1, sustained a broken arm and a dislocated shoulder when he was tangled up in a line of hose his company was laying. The captain was on the truck and the hose was being unreeled when he was caught.

Hoseman Burke was hurt when a section of ceiling fell on him, large pieces of plaster hitting him on the head and rendering him senseless for a short time.

The firemen succeeded in checking the flames before they scored much headway in the main theatre, excepting in the balcony.

The Strand Theatre is owned by Nathan Brown of Newton, who is also owner of the Broadway Theatre in Everett.

STUDENTS WELCOME NEW TECH HEAD

Dr. S. W. Stratton, who assumed his duties as the new president of Technology on New Year's, addressed more than 2,000 members of the student body in a convocation at the Walker Memorial.

Dr. S. W. Stratton

In his address he spoke of Technology as the best institution of its kind in the country, and declared that he was proud to be its president. He also mentioned the necessity of trained men in the business world and the importance of science in modern industries.

VALENTINO BAN ON 'BROTHER' MUZZI

New York, Jan. 3.—Rodolph Valentino today sent the following letter to newspapers and cinema trade publications:

"I am informed that one Antonio Muzzi of New York has been representing and holding himself out to be my brother. I write this letter to inform you that the said Muzzi is in no way related to me.

"You are requested to take no advertising given you by any one in which the said Antonio Muzzi is exploited under the name Valentino.

"Muzzi lost his position with a film corporation as a result of Valentino's displeasure. Rodolph became so worried over the claims of the "pretender" to his throne that he appealed to his attorneys. It is said Muzzi resembles Valentino slightly.

Valentino said he has but one brother, a physician in Italy.

READING TAKES OVER DISTRICT ATTORNEYSHIP

Arthur K. Reading, newly elected district attorney of Middlesex County, was sworn in today by Presiderick M. Esty, registrar of probate.

Simultaneously his four assistants were also inducted into office. They are Gardner W. Pearson of Lowell, Louise E. Boutwell of Malden, Warren L. Bishop of Wayland and Robert T. Bushnell of Newton.

Numerous floral pieces were sent to Mr. Reading, the largest being a magnificent set piece from the 101st Cleaners Sportsmen's Club, of which he is president.

Immediately after he was sworn in, he took up his duties before the Grand Jury, which is now sitting.

PURSUE WOODSMAN AS SOUTH END SLAYER

The police are looking for an unidentified white man, who, it is alleged, shot and killed Richard Johnson, thirty-five years old, colored, during a card game at the latter's home, No. 46 Middlesex street, South End.

The murderer, who is said to be a lumberjack, is believed to have hit the trail for the Maine woods immediately following the shooting. The man sought was known to friends in the South End only as "Deefie." He is described as middle aged, of medium height and complexion. He was also very deaf and stuttered when he spoke.

REFLEX RADIO SET USES CRYSTAL

The reflex radio receiver in which the same tube is used for both audio and radio frequency amplification is shown in the accompanying diagram.

The receiver is capable of extraordinary long distance work and at the same time will give sufficient volume to operate a loud speaker. By many the reflex principle is preferred to the super-regenerative on the grounds that clearer reception with few controls is possible with the former.

A crystal is used for rectification. This is more economical than a third tube would be, and at the same time signals are clearer and less likely to be distorted.

One of the features of the set is the ease of adjustment. Once the set is built, no more tuning is required than in the ordinary detector and amplifier circuit.

Amplifying tubes are used with the proper A and B battery voltages. Three transformers are needed as shown in the diagram. By using WD-11 tubes, this receiver may be set up with comparatively slight expense.

(How to use the WD-11, the new dry cell tube that has spelled the doom of the costly storage battery, will be told in tomorrow's paper.)

PROBE DEATH OF MAN IN GARDNER

Gardner, Jan. 3.—Police officials and Medical Examiner Edward A. Sawyer are investigating the mysterious death of Willie Tuttle of Sboddy Hill.

Tuttle died at his home. His wife told the authorities that he had taken some oil of wintergreen for stomach trouble.

Following an examination by Dr. Sawyer, Acting Chief of Police Frank M. Burns said an arrest might be made, pending further investigation.

Dr. Sawyer will confer with the district attorney. Children of Tuttle by his first wife said they have never known of their father suffering with stomach trouble.

The police are seeking a male caller, who is said to have been ordered from the house last night by Tuttle. Mrs. Tuttle admitted to the police that she had entertained men friends on several occasions. She said she had served a three-year term in the House of Correction at Westmoreland, N. H.

MYSTERY IN IDENTITY OF DEAD WOMAN SENT HERE

STRANGE TANGLE PUZZLES POLICE

Man and Two Women in Boston Trying to Find Relatives

Who is the woman whose body lies at Lewis Jones' undertaking rooms next to LaGrange street police station?

A man giving the name of Frank L. Dickerson and claiming to be a deputy sheriff and living at No. 428 Pacific street, Brooklyn, N. Y., admits he does not know even though he declares he is her husband and here seeking relatives.

A casual remark of this man that he was also doing a little investigating of a Brooklyn murder with a Boston end only added to the mystery surrounding the woman's past and piqued the interest of local police. Apparently their curiosity was not satisfied.

STRANGE SITUATION.

An eighteen-year-old girl, a slightly younger girl supposed to be her sister, and an unidentified sailor are other elements in this unusual case which the Boston police cannot explain.

In fact, the entrance of the older girl, who gave the name of Mrs. Florence Flowers and later said she was the divorced wife of a Robert Smith, into a Staniford street lodging house with the sailor, led to the police investigation that disclosed the strange situation.

The name of Frank Dickerson and Helen Byrnes, listed on the death certificate as Mrs. Dickerson, came to the attention of the police last Thursday. Police Headquarters bulletin on that date carried this entry:

"Information Wanted—A telegram was received from the Western Union at the Dudley street station from one Frank Dickman of Brooklyn, N. Y., addressed to the chief of police of Roxbury, stating that the body of Miss Helen Byrnes, supposed to have lived in Roxbury a year and a half ago, will arrive in Boston Friday, December 29. No address nor further information given."

CAN'T FIND RELATIVES.

An officer from the Lagrange street station was detailed to watch for the body. In the meantime Lewis Jones received a telegram from Undertaker J. J. Cronin of No. 115 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., to take charge of the body.

The police search for relatives was unsuccessful. Details from all Boston sections sought out families by name of Eyrnes, but none admitted relationship. Nor did Mr. Dickerson seek the police, although today he said he had been here six days conducting a private hunt.

His reason for bringing his wife's body to this city, he told the police, was to fulfill a dying wish of the woman that she be buried in a lot provided by her first husband, supposed to be a Mr. Byrnes. Later the man said he understood she had been married to a Fitzpatrick before wedding Byrnes.

Patrolman McCarthy, in plain clothes, was sending before a Staniford street rooming house. His attention was attracted to an extremely young looking girl leaning on the arm of a sailor. They entered the house. A few minutes later he investigated.

GIRL ADS SEARCH.

At the Joy street station the girl asserted she was Mrs. Florence Flowers of Brooklyn and that she was here with Sheriff Dickerson to help him find the relatives of his dead wife. The sailor, she announced, was an old friend of the family." He was dismissed shortly.

The sheriff and his youthful companion went directly to the American House on arriving here, according to her story. There, she said, she met her sister, May.

A hotel clerk decided that the sheriff and the two youthful looking girls were not brother and sisters and questioned them closely. One of the trio admitted the girls were sisters-in-law. This, the hotel man said, was a violation of the true name law, even though they were in separate rooms, and ordered them to leave. En route to the Staniford street address May mysteriously disappeared.

'HEATLESS' LANDLORD IS FINED

Lynn Man Must Pay $50 for Failure to Keep Tenants Warm

Harry E. Lipman, landlord, has plenty of coal in the basement of his six-apartment block at No. 81 North Common street, Lynn.

But he has been keeping the place on a low temperature basis.

So he was fined $50 by Judge Reeve in Lynn Court today for denying his tenants sufficient heat.

Temperatures of only 38 degrees, for example, for one apartment housing three aged women and an eight-months-old baby was also rather too low in view of Lynn ordinance requiring 65 degrees minimum.

To aggravate the situation was the fact that Lipman raised rents from $16.50 to $17.50 a week last October. He wrote to tenants:

"In view of the high price of coal it is necessary to raise the rent $1."

Testimony today brought out that Lipman bought his coal last May. He was unable to explain in court how the coal bought last May could have increased in price so that he had to boost rents. He was told that, while the value of the coal itself may have increased, his action savored of profiteering.

Health Inspector Joseph P. Murray visited the Lipman block to investigate. Six families have five room apartments. The three aged women whom Murray found in the 38-degree apartment with the eight-months-old baby had coats on in effort to keep warm.

In the apartment of Dr. Walter L. Burns and family the temperature was 45 degrees. Similar conditions were found in other apartments.

A second visit by Inspector Murray the following day showed no improvement, so Lipman was brought before the court on complaint of Health Commissioner M. M. Donovan.

The Lipman case is only one of several under investigation by Lynn Board of Health, which is determined to enforce the 65-degree temperature rule.

BIRD PECKS 14 WOUNDS ON CHILD

Little Victim of Needham Attack in Serious Condition in Hospital

Suffering from fourteen wounds as the result of an attack by a crow, three-months-old Elena Miele, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Miele of No. 24 Chestnut street, Needham, is in a critical condition at the Glover Home and Hospital.

The child's mother saved her from probable death. Moved by intuition and then attracted by cries, she hastened to her baby's carriage outside a neighbor's home and chased the bird away.

Baby Elena's face is a mass of wounds. The crow's beak penetrated the flesh of the nose and mouth and completely encircled both eyes. Physicians fear blood poisoning.

The baby was awaiting the blankets in robes and carriage while her mother was inspecting the neighbor's new home.

HEARS BABY CRY.

Leaving the baby safe the mother went on up to the second floor of the neighbor's home. She was there no longer than fifteen minutes when mother instinct told her something was wrong and that her child was meeting with harm.

No sooner had she thought this, Mrs. Miele claims, when she heard her baby yelling and screaming. "My baby never had a sick day since the moment she was born," said Mrs. Miele. "When I heard such noise I knew something serious had happened to my child."

She found the crow perched near the head of the carriage. The infant's face was streaming with blood. She grabbed the child from the carriage and hastened to the hospital.

HUNT FOR BIRD.

The crow, which is as large as a hen, was found some time ago in a nest by small boys, who removed it and fed it. It gave no evidence of mischievous and was accepted by the community as a pet. The crow is being hunted and when found will be shot.

For some time the crow has been a daily visitor to the vicinity of the neighbor's house in quest of food tossed to it by the carriers. Extreme hunger is believed to have prompted the unusual attack.

BELIEVES MATE IS CAPTIVE

Roxbury Physician Asks Police to Help Find Spouse Missing Three Weeks

Fear that a Boston drug addict he abducted his wife and is holding her a captive, Dr. Louis Blanchard, well-known Roxbury and Wellesley physician, after a private search, has called for aid in finding his missing mate. She vanished three weeks ago.

That her disappearance is enforced and is a form of reprisal taken by a drug addict whom Dr. Blanchard refused a prescription for morphine, is one of her husband's theories.

Mrs. L. Blanchard

FINDS WIFE GONE.

The incident stuck in the physician's memory. A week later, Dr. Blanchard returned from a trip in town to find his wife missing. She did not return that night. He recollected that she had spoken of visiting a friend in Lowell, where she lived before her marriage as Miss Blanche Gurney. He recalled also that she had said her brother, Albert W. Gurney, a realtor of No. 31 Hale street, was to have escorted her to the train.

Dr. Blanchard called his brother-in-law and asked him if he had seen Mrs. Blanchard. Gurney denied that he had. For days the grieved physician has made the rounds of all places known to him where it was possible his wife might be.

ALARM INCREASES.

He met with no success and his alarm increased daily. He arrived finally at the conclusion that his wife was the victim of a plot. He declares that their four years of married life have been exceedingly happy, and there was no reason known to him why his wife should have left him.

The only possible explanation which occurs to him is that his wife has been abducted. He knows of no one who would have reason to harm him or his wife, unless it be the strange visitor.

Dr. Blanchard describes his wife as a comely woman of thirty-five years of age. She is about five feet four inches tall, of medium weight. She wore when she disappeared a coat trimmed with fur, tan shoes and stockings and a green skirt.

LOVE ROW LANDS GIRL AND TWO MEN IN JAIL

Talk today proved expensive for Guglielmo Aloise of Malden, Giovanni Mercurio of Douglas Court, North End and Susie Russo, of the same adress.

Giovanni was jailed for the same, and is threatened with a Mann Act warrant.

Miss Russo was arrested on a statutory charge.

Guglielmo and Giovanni of the North End were so taken up with their argument they did not hear Patrolman Charles A. Correlli approach.

Correlli understands Italian. It appears there was a certain woman in Rochester, N. Y. Guglielmo and Giovanni were discussing her. The argument became so fervid that Correlli prepared for action.

He was just in time. Signor Mercurio reached for a pistol and, as it flashed into view, the copper grappled with the man.

Guglielmo then started to unpack his own gat. With Giovanni's revolver, however, Correlli backed Guglielmo against a building and placed both men under arrest.

He marched them to the Hanover street station. Presently, a diminutive, blonde young lady appeared.

She said she was Susie Russo of Douglas court. Guglielmo and Giovanni, still arguing in the room. Susie ran up to Giovanni, threw her arms about him and, in a second, the argument was three-cornered.

Correlli listened in.

He learned that Susie had been brought up from Rochester by Giovanni, was living with him at Douglas court and that Guglielmo had taken a fancy to her.

BROOKLINE MAN AND 7 OTHERS ASK DIVORCE

Eight romances came to an end today when seven divorce suits and a petition for the annulment of marriage were filed in the Norfolk Superior Court, Dedham.

Beatrice C. Galbreath of Quincy asks for an annulment of her marriage on August 13, 1914, to Edgar E. Galbreath, on the grounds that he had a previous wife who is still living and not divorced.

William F. Hunter of Brookline wants a divorce from Christie J. Hunter of Foxboro. Hunter charges that his wife deserted him.

Catherine Graquinto of Weymouth charges Frank Graquinto with cruel and unusual treatment on August 19, 1922, just ten days after they were married in Boston.

Mary W. Corrigan of Boston claims that her husband, Joseph T. Corrigan of Needham, deserted her on April 17, 1919, a month after they were married.

Cruel and abusive treatment is the charge which Marion L. Steele of Quincy is bringing against Samuel Steele. They were married in Scotland on August 23, 1905.

Marian B. Burke of Weymouth wishes to divorce Thomas E. Burke of Braintree, alleging cruel and abusive treatment and intoxication. The couple were married in 1908 in Quincy.

Neglect is the reason given by Mrs. Adeline Adams Eubanks of Needham in her suit against Fred A. Eubanks. They were married in Needham on April 7, 1919.

Train Hits Deer

Blind Legislator Takes His Seat in the House

He is Representative William H. McCarthy, Democrat, of Rockland.

Mr. McCarthy is forty-five. He was blinded at the age of sixteen by a torch flare while marching in a Grover Cleveland parade.

He is in the piano sales and tuning business in Rockland and Brockton. His partner, Everett Beal, also is blind. Mr. McCarthy is married and has three children.

COUNSEL FOR MRS. EMERY IS HEARD

George S. Taft, former district attorney of Worcester County, was examined by Attorney-General Allen's Special Grand Jury today.

Taft was counsel for Curtis W. Emery at the time he and his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Jennie S. Chase of Brookline were involved in difficulties that lead to demands of $50,000.

Attorney-General Allen charged, before the Supreme Court, that Pelletier, Coakley and William J. Corcoran conspired to extort this money.

Victor Papineau, former husband of Mrs. Emery, was recalled before the jury again today. He was closeted with the jury for a long period. The jury adjourned early.

PORTLAND GRAIN SHIPMENTS GAIN

Portland, Me., Jan. 3.—Grain shipments from this port during December amounted to 4,938,360 bushels, a gain of 1,600,000 bushels over the same month a year ago. The total for the year was 19,938,045 bushels, 1,829,000 more than in 1921.

PETTING PARTY TRAILED BY IRATE HUBBY

While Mrs. Gertrude Alsegiund stalled petting and drinking parties in her automobile her irate husband watched from another machine in which he pursued her from place to place.

At least, so did Charles Alsterlund, Bromfield street diamond dealer, testify in Suffolk Divorce Court today.

A strong pair of headlights, he averred, so illuminated the interior of his wife's car that he could easily discern the features of the man who seemed to be usurping his place successfully.

Witness described with much detail how he parked outside his wife's home and saw a man drive up in her machine, how they both left together, going to Warren avenue, where they parked for a half hour and then continued to Odd Fellows' Hall to a dance.

Thence he chased to Central square, Cambridge, where they dined, only to drive to some other place, and there stage another drinking and petting party, which the faithful headlights revealed.

ASSESSED $50 FOR IMPROPER LETTER

Daniel Gillis, Wilbur street, Everett, was fined $50 by Judge Morton in Federal Court today on the charge of sending an improper letter through the mails.

The letter was sent to Leonard Hansen, No. 171 Chelsea street, Everett. Gillis originally pleaded not guilty to the Federal indictment, but today changed his plea to guilty. The letter was mailed at Melrose October 4, 1921.

TRAFFIC OFFICER BRACKETT MISSING

Traffic Officer Harold F. Brackett of the Boston police is missing from his home, No. 121 Trenton street, East Boston, and his wife and ten-months-old baby are almost penniless. Brackett, a wounded Canadian army veteran, may be suffering mentally as a result of his injuries, his wife and friends think. He left home Sunday.

BREWSTER'S AIDE A WEST POINTER

Lieutenant Paul B. Kelly, aide to Major-General Andrew W. Brewster, commanding the First Corps Area, is a West Point-er, graduating in 1918, just before the armistice was signed.

Lieut. P. B. Kelly

Lieutenant Kelly is considered an exceptionally valuable officer in the Coast Artillery, a branch of the service in which the Atlantic seaboard officials are showing unusual interest in these days of wars and rumors of wars.

"NURSING BOTTLE" CASE PUT OFF AGAIN

The "nursing bottle" banquet case came before Federal Commissioner Hayes today on continuance and, at request of the defense, was again put over a week. The banquet was the annual dinner of the New England Road Builders' Association at the Hotel Somerset.

ARRESTED 20 YEARS AGO ON SAME CHARGE

Chief of Police John McBride of Cambridge recognized a familiar face when James H. Langley, colored, of Garden street, Boston, was brought in for trespassing on Harvard College.

Exactly twenty years ago, Chief McBride, then a patrolman, arrested Langley for exactly the same offense.

Langley, who is on parole from a Pennsylvania reformatory, was found in the room of a student in one of the Harvard dormitories. At first he pretended to be a deaf mute.

2,997 SHIPS USED CANAL LAST YEAR

Panama, Jan. 3.—The passage of 2,997 ships through the Panama Canal in 1922 established a new high record. In 1921, the best previous year, 2,814 vessels used the waterway. The tolls collected in 1922 aggregated $12,572,467.

JACK DEMPSEY SURE TO LOSE IN MIXED MATCH, SAYS LEWIS

WRESTLER TELLS HOW TO WIN OVER BOXER

If Ed Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, ever meet in a mixed match, who will win and what tactics will the principals use? The views of Lewis on such a contest follow.

By ED ("STRANGLER") LEWIS
World's Heavyweight Wrestling Champion.

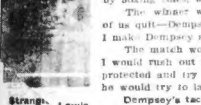
San Francisco, Jan. 3.—I'll beat Jack Dempsey if we ever meet in a mixed match and I'll beat him in less time than he took to finish Georges Carpentier at Boyle's Thirty Acres. This match, according to my ideas of it, will be a fight to the finish. Dempsey will be allowed to either wrestle with me or abide by boxing rules, while I'll stick to wrestling.

The winner would be decided only when one of us quit—Dempsey could knock me out, or when I make Dempsey shout "enough."

The match would start with a rush, as I see it. I would rush out of my corner with my chin well protected and try to catch hold of Dempsey while he would try to land a knockout punch.

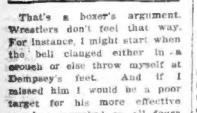
Dempsey's tactics would be evident. He would try to keep away from me because once I was able to get a ho... on him and bring him to the mat, my superior weight and knowledge of wrestling would be a big argument in favor of Dempsey's speedy finish.

Most people tell me that Dempsey would have no trouble eluding me and that he would be able to step around, landing punches in my body and face until I was ready for the knockout blow.



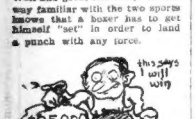
Strangler Lewis

That's a boxer's argument. Wrestlers don't feel that way. For instance, I might start when the bell clanged either in a crouch or else throw myself at Dempsey's feet. And if I missed him I would be a poor target for his more effective punches, crouched on all fours on the floor of the ring.



Furthermore, in order to hit me, Dempsey would have to come within reach of my arms. When he did aim a wallop at me, I could very easily grab his arm and then could finish him in my own way.

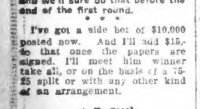
When Dempsey does get within reach of my arms, he might try some short arm punches. Well and good, but everyone half way familiar with the two sports knows that a boxer has to get himself "set" in order to land a punch with any force.



I'm in such good condition now—I wrestle most of the time once a week—that any blows he might land on my body while we were grappling wouldn't have near the telling effect they would have on a man not in a wrestler's condition.

Once Dempsey is on the mat with me, regardless of the knowledge he is supposed to have of wrestling—my superior weight alone, at least forty pounds, would tell. That's my game. Fighting is his. The battle will be over once we go to the mat and we'll sure do that before the end of the first round.

I've got a side bet of $10,000 posted now. And I'll add $15,000 to that once the papers are signed. I'll meet him winner take all, or on the basis of a 75-25 split or with any other kind of an arrangement.



Before this contest is over the public will be convinced about the relative merits of wrestling and boxing as means of self defense.

ONCE there was a bird who started the Year right. He went to church in the morning, which proved to be his undoing night before. He had dined out the family, and passed up ... dessert, where the real ... was flowing, and there was sure to be mirth and laughter and everything. THIS TIME OF YEAR
(Offered by K. E. N., Back Bay.)

THIS is the open season on red and scratched beaks, from December 24 to January 4 (first wash day of the New Year). We are all trying out our Christmas handkerchiefs with disastrous results. We may draw them through our flippers in frantic endeavor to make their impregnable newness, but they remain stiff as the old rubber collar of more or less happy boyhood. Present price of laundry makes it crime to have 'em laundered first. So we suffer. Look around car tonight and see all pristine whiteness suffing unhappy countenances. We use three a day, and while our suffering is more intense, it's more compact, too. One thing about Christmas blowouts—everybody's in the same car.

DANNY EDWARDS TO BOX AT LYNN

Danny Edwards of California, ... bred bantam champion of the ... will make his first appear... next ... Lynn ... night ... he ... Joyce, Canada ... bantam champion, in the feature bout. Edwards is well known in this section as he has appeared in Boston many times and always proved a satisfactory performer.

Danny Edwards.

Joyce has boxed at Fall River and New Bedford many times and is a great favorite in these two cities. He is one of the hardest punchers in the bantam class and his sensational knockout of Bobby Dyson at New Bedford in the last 30 seconds of the bout proved him a boy of class.

Paul Doyle

PAUL DOYLE IS TO TACKLE SCHOELL

Paul Doyle, being a perfectly respectable married man with a wife and one child, cannot afford to spend the winter months at Palm Beach. The elusive and heavy thumping Palasolo entry will journey to Scranton, Pa., tomorrow night, where he is booked to toss a few leaves at Frankie Schoell and avoid as many returns as possible.

Doyle has developed into such a big card in New York and Pennsylvania that it is no longer necessary for him to seek work in New England rings.

Inasmuch as Schoell is a vastly improved boxer, as he recently proved by handing Bryan a setback, it is apparent that Doyle is in for a rather hectic evening.

ST. JOSEPHS TO HOLD AMATEUR SHOW

The St. Joseph's T. A. S. will conduct another amateur boxing tournament at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square, Tuesday night, according to an announcement made by President William H. Cuddy.

Arrangements have been made for five open classes and it is expected that the largest entry list of the season will be received. The classes will include 112, 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds.

Entries will close with Frank Hanlon, No. 35 Cambridge street.

MISS STREBEIGH TO COACH ARLINGTON

The Arlington High School girls' basketball team has secured for its coach Miss Barbara Strebeigh of New York city, a senior at Sargent School. Miss Strebeigh captained the Sargent School field hockey team last season and was chosen as centre half-back on the All-Boston field hockey team, which finished second in the tournament for the national championship at Philadelphia, Pa.

HARMON BEATS WOODS FOR 28TH STRAIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

Eddie Shevlin, New England welterweight champion. A year from now it may be a different story.

Twenty-eight straight for Willie Harmon.

Billy Woods was the last victim.

It took the welterweight sensation just seven rounds to gain the victory. Referee Phil Powers then stopped the firing.

* * *

Nate Siegal may be next on Harmon's calling list. The Eddie Mack entry isn't so unwise as to believe he is seasoned enough to take a shot at

Time is the great revealer. Jack Britton will agree with us.

We picked Harmon.

Incidentally the fight doped. Johnny Clinton, former New England lightweight champion, routed Earl France of New York in ten frames. The quarrel was close and interesting, but Clinton did the most effective scoring.

* * *

Some of the boys at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House booed the decision. Clinton won on points all right, but he would never be elected to office if only fight fans voted. Queer world, mates.

Harry Foley, of the North End, scampered across the line ahead of Johnny Scully, of South Boston, in an eight-round frolic. Scully got away from the barrier in the lead, but he faltered at the half way post. At the three-quarter mark, Foley almost counted with a kayo. Both warriors were tired as they whirled into the stretch, but Foley had the most in reserve and was several lengths out front as the judges mixed the drinks after the wire dropped.

* * *

Bob Conlon, of Charlestown, plastered Tommy Murphy, of Somerville, rather roughly in the opening prelim. The curtain drooped in the third session with nobody shouting for an encore.

* * *

Let the calcium flare on Harmon again. And have him meet a fast stepper just outside of the top money class. Then we'll get a real line on this brilliant performer.

Willie is a Hebrew, weighs 143 pounds, is twenty-one years of age, can punch, box, and is also a good ring general.

* * *

Like other great Hebrew boxers, Harmon is a keen business man. He has Eddie Mack, Irish-American, signed to manage him under a long term contract. A Hebrew boy and an Irish-American manager is an unbeatable combination.

You must sit around the fireside doping the boxers until next Monday night when you can box up to Mechanics Building and see Pancho Villa, American flyweight champion, and Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., battle in a title contest.

* * *

Villa has made more money fighting since last July than President Harding receives as salary for one year. Which proves that Villa may not prove something.

* * *

Villa is the greatest attraction in the ring with the exception of Jack Dempsey. You will realize this if you journey to Mechanics Building next Monday night. A capacity crowd will greet the Billie Filipino. And after you have seen him in action you will know why.

SKATING AFTER THE GAME

DILBOY POST TO HOLD SHOW

Tomorrow evening in K. of C. Hall, Somerville, the George Dilboy Post, V. F. W., will inaugurate the 1921 amateur boxing season in that city.

The committee has received the entries of the top-notchers in classes at 112, 118, 135, 147 and 160 pounds.

The fans of Magoun square will be glad to know that Frank "Bozo" Lavarello intends to make his debut in the 160-pound class, and will turn out in large numbers to support him on his first appearance within the roped arena.

Herbert Cole, chairman of the committee, says the best show the organization has had in many a moon will be staged.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY TRACK MEN REPORT

The first call for indoor track practice for the Boston University squad has been issued by Coach Oscar E. Hedlund for tomorrow in the First Corps Cadets Armory on Columbus avenue.

A stiff program is being arranged for the B. U. team this Spring. Coach Hedlund will be assisted by Harry Earwine of the Boston Athletic Association.

The first competition will be an open meet to be held January 20 at the Boston Y. M. C. A.

TRACK TEAM A BIG HIT AT SOMERVILLE

By FRED C. LANE.

Somerville High is out to establish a name in track, basketball and hockey. The athletic council at a recent meeting made track a major sport and since then Coach Ayer has had a large squad out for the team.

Bob Rogers.

Hockey and basketball have second call with the youngsters, who are out this season to set up a record on the banked corners for the Red and Black.

Coach Ayer looks kindly towards track athletics, as he made a reputation as captain of Dean Academy in his younger days and coached Boston University.

Manager John O'Neil has booked meets with Lynn English High at Lynn on February 3, and Lowell High at Lowell on February 24. It's necessary for the team to hold all meets away from home.

For veterans that set up a fair reputation on the cinder path last Spring, Bob Wells, Dante Georgette, Paul Simpson, Everett Ryan and Leo Bagley.

The team will practice in the K. of C. Hall. The basketball team will also use that hall for practice and home games.

A hockey rink is being constructed at Central Hill. The majority of last year's players were lost through graduation. Coach Ayer must build a new team.

Danny McFayden, captain has satisfied the school authorities that he has given time to his books and will be able to lead his team on the ice for their first game. In addition to McFayden, Ed Jeremiah, Paul Simpson, Albert Boyd, Frank Cole, Francis Higan, Lawrence Hoy and Harold Currier have had experience at the puck chasing game.

The basketball team has been practicing for two weeks and the players are ready to put a fast team on the floor. In addition to thirty new candidates who seek berths such veterans as Parker Rowell, Frank Frasier, Chester Matterns, Delvett Morrill, Charles Kelley, John O'Neil and Andy Haggerty are ready to play.

A fine opportunity is offered the schoolboys and girls of Greater Boston by the Gold Skates Race Committee to test out their speed and skill in the various races to be held the middle of January on the neighboring playgrounds.

GOLD SKATES RACES MAKE A HIT WITH THE YOUNGSTERS

KNOW THAT ALL WILL BE TREATED SQUARE

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Albert O. Hill, of No. 114 Hemenway street, believe in taking chances.

In forwarding his name as an entrant in the coming GOLD SKATES RACES, Albert, who is four teen years old, wrote the GOLD SKATES EDITOR: "At the last Bicycle Race I thought I'd take a chance in trick riding and Mayor Curley gave me first prize

"I think I'll try another chance, but this time in skating. So enter my name as a contestant for the GOLD SKATES

"I like to enter athletic meets held by the Boston American because the judges always are fair"

The same spirit was indicated in a letter sent the GOLD SKATES EDITOR by Alec Rose a fifteen year-old Chelsea boy

"I have at last got up enough courage to enter the GOLD SKATES RACES," wrote Alec. "I learned to skate only last year and have not practiced any this year, yet, and perhaps I won't be able to beat some of the experienced skaters. But there is nothing like trying—you never can tell what may happen"

Those two boys, in their messages to the GOLD SKATES EDITOR, show they have grasped the idea which prompted the proposed big ice skating derby. Those in charge of the races want every boy and girl in Greater Boston to take a chance in the healthful sport. Perhaps you will win the big prize in the finals in your event—perhaps you will not—but by taking a chance you will gain valuable experience for the races next year, and will benefit immensely through the sport itself.

Albert and Alec were but two of the nearly fifty boys and girls and young men and young women who forwarded their blanks in time to reach the GOLD SKATES EDITOR this morning, and were duly entered as contestants, at their respective skating places.

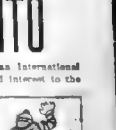
OWEN LEADS HARVARD AGAINST TORONTO

Harvard and Toronto may soon be members of an International Collegiate Hockey League next season. That will add interest to the game between these teams tonig[ht] at the Arena.

McGill has been sounded on [the] matter, and Toronto [is] in favor of it. A year ago [the] Harvard completely [re]built its hockey team, [and] has come out of the [fir]st half of the season [in] the lead. Dartmouth [is] the strongest team [in] the Big Three, [and] has the best [ch]ance of copping [the] championship of [the] Canada cup series.



[Ha]rvard and Toronto [are] now ready to [meet] some semblance of hockey [pow]er and the team is likely to be [a] factor in the United States Leag[ue] this winter.

Raymie Skilton Proves Big Help to Victorias

Raymie Skilton has the missing [li]nk combination that [ma]de the Victorias [a] real contender for [the] championship [of] Canada when [the] season opens [in] January. Skilton [is] a speedy outfield [ma]n and a clever [ba]tsman, and [he] will be a big [ad]dition to the [Vi]ctoria team.

Boston College at last has found a team that is willing to risk a game. The Victorias are willing to pay [the] Eagles $1000 for a game [in] the Arena.

Should Have Powerful Team in a Week

In another weeks the Vics should have a pretty powerful team with a [fe]w good men [to] add to the [pre]sent lineup. Cecil Hart, [for] many years coach [of] the Montreal Canadiens, [is] now in Victoria and [is] trying to get together a [te]am that will be able to [ma]ke a good showing [in] the Pacific coast league [ra]ces. Hart has a number [of] players under [co]ntract, and [is] trying to get [to]gether a team that will [be] able to make a good [sh]owing.

The Canadiens [are] a good deal [be]low their [fo]rmer standard [of] excellence, [but] they are [ca]pable of [ma]king a [fi]ne showing [at] times, and [it] is [ex]pected that [Ha]rt will be able [to] get the [ma]ximum out [of] the [ma]terial [at] his disposal.

Toronto University [al]so will [ha]ve a team [th]at will [be] able to [ma]ke a good [sh]owing [in] the [se]ries [in] which [it] will [be] engaged [fo]r some [ti]me. [Th]e Varsity [ha]s been [st]rengthened [by] the [ad]dition of [se]veral [ne]w players [of] more than [ord]inary ability [an]d will be [a] factor [in] the [se]ries [in] which [it] will [be] engaged [fo]r some [ti]me. [Th]e Varsity [ha]s been [st]rengthened [by] the [ad]dition of [se]veral [ne]w players [of] more than [ord]inary ability [an]d will be [a] factor [in] the [se]ries [in] which [it] will [be] engaged [fo]r some [ti]me.

ARLINGTON HOCKEY SIX OPENS SEASON

The Arlington Hockey [Six] will open [its] season [to]-morrow night [at] the Arlington [Ri]nk. Coach [Ha]rry Bower has been [bu]sy getting [the] team into [fo]rm for the [op]ening game [to]-morrow night. The [Ar]lington team will [be] clothed in a speedy outfit [of] the all-wool outfit that fell into form Matthew Hammond, the veteran goal tender, is captain of the team.

Arlington's first league game will be played on January 8, with Cambridge Latin School [as] the opponent.

READING TO OPEN AGAINST METHUEN

The new Middlesex Interscholastic Basketball League, which is composed of the high schools of Reading, Lexington, Middleton, North Andover and Reading High Schools, will get into action tomorrow when Reading will [op]en [its] season [at] Methuen in the Lawrence Y. M. [C.] [A.]

SHAWMUT CASEY TEAMS PLAY CHELSEA

The resumption of play in the Knights of Columbus Basketball League finds the teams closely bunched. Tonight Chelsea will play Shawmut at the Roxbury High School, and Boston will play Bunker Hill in the same hall on Friday evening.

Yellow Charge Drove Pitcher to Pennant

By FRANK CHANCE
New Manager Boston Red Box, Former Peerless Leader of Champion Chicago Cubs.

CHAPTER VIII.

Before getting down to the details of our famous playoff with the Giants, I must say a few things about one of our pitchers Ed Reulbach.

For he practically won that pennant by a great winning streak, which came just when we needed it badly. Ed, with a world of natural stuff, was always an in and outer. One day he looked like the greatest pitcher ever manufactured, the next he would be hammered all around the lot. He was a careless sort of bird, who seemed to care as much about playing college tricks as he did about winning.

I recall one game in Brooklyn that year, which was tied in the eighth. There was such a crowd in the park that the grandstand overflow was spread in front of the benches and rather close to the diamond. Just before going to the box in the eighth Ed came to me and asked if I would quickly send in and get him a piece of soap.

I thought he was crazy, and told him so. Then he explained that he wanted to chew it, and froth it all at the mouth. That, he explained, would make the crowd think he was mad and [illegible] him [illegible] base lines.

Undoubtedly, it would have, but it would have chased half our team with it. For that game you are sure of was that many [illegible] went home. That game meant [illegible] at the time but [illegible] more of [illegible] than anything.

Throughout the early part of the campaign, Reulbach got the sudden blowup habit. He would pitch great ball for six or seven innings, then get [illegible]. So I figured he was about through and looked around for a trade for him.

Clarke Griffith was after me for a pitcher, so finally I offered to trade him Ed for one of his great [illegible]. I made the offer on the field before a big game one day, and his comeback was:

Double Victory to Prove He Wasn't Yellow

"You can't wish that yellow bird on me" words to that effect. Undoubtedly some of the papers heard it, for that night, Reulbach came to me and asked me if I had tried to trade him.

I told him I had, and he wanted to know why he had been turned down. I tried to explain, but Ed didn't want him, but he was so persistent in demanding the exact words used that I knew he had been tipped off. So I told him Griff called him yellow.

"He thinks I'm yellow, does he?" growled Ed. "I'll put me back in there tomorrow, and I'll show you and him whether I am or not." I didn't put him in the next day, but I did on the day following.

We were playing a double header in Brooklyn. Reulbach won the first game, 1 to 0, with a splendid pitching effort. He was all smiles when he came in to the dressing room.

"How do you [illegible]?" I asked him.

"Great [illegible]. I [illegible] I could [illegible]."

Reulbach [illegible] and went back to the field.

He went in there, and won that one by the same score, 1 to 0, and he pitched better ball than he showed in the opening game.

Beat Every Club in League Before He Stopped Run

The reason for this is buried somewhere, but that is the way ball goes. That little remark about being yellow got on Roulbach's nerves. It made him mad enough to go in and give every ounce of [illegible], and it just about won that pennant for us.

That double win started Edward off on a streak that didn't end until he had chalked up fourteen straight victories, and in a close race, that's what you could call a great help.

He beat every club in the league before he was stopped, and I would have taken almost any amount of money for his pitcher I was willing to give anyone a [illegible] a month previous.

There was no friendship visible around the ball park when we stepped forth to [illegible], but play off I mentioned yesterday. It was perhaps the fiercest situation the game had ever known. [illegible] a story, for the matter of that.

The Cubs and Giants were on the ragged edge of nervous prostration from the strain of a terrible race. We had a little the toughest of it, for we had to go on extra days with all the worry entailed by knowing we had to win.

But we were a real fighting ball club then, with everything set to show our stuff. Just as a sample of the friendly feeling between the boys:

When Cy Seymour came onto the field, he passed Joe Tinker, who was looking over his bats.

"Hello, Joe," the good natured Cy remarked

"Don't you hello me, you big stiff," snarled Tinker, "and that goes for the rest of your gang."

And until the end of that wild contest, there were no more friendly offers, but plenty of the other kind.

(Tomorrow—Baseball's most famous single game).

Only Sixteen and Yet She Is a Neglected Wife—In Four Reels

By R. Throgmorton De Lacey†

Reel I.

IN the expensive saffron-colored Louis Seize drawing room of her three-room kitchenette apartment, beautiful Sucha Babbler, young wife of O. Watta Babbler, millionaire ocean shifter at the Burlesque Theatre, is manicuring her pet goldfish. Sucha, a sweet girl with a lisp, weeps bitter tears. A title sets the audience right: "Only sixteen and yet a neglected wife!"

A maid, easily identified as such by her short point d'esprit apron, enters, gazes at the weeping Sucha, shakes her head mournfully and says: Spoken Title—"Master has just telephoned he will not be home for dinner."

Sucha, too proud to show her grief before the help, dabs her eyes hastily and exits to the dining room. She seats herself at one end of a twelve-foot table. A solid-golden-haired little girl sits at the other end. Title: Sucha's twelve-year-old daughter. Merr her only recompense for a life of loneliness."

Reel II.

The Clamorous Clam Cabaret. At a table nearest the camera are O. Watta Babbler and a woman. Babbler, a trim man the end of a card sharp, is opening the champagne, so we know the woman is not his wife. On the other hand the striking blonde is Winnie, champion female boxer of the world. A diamond championship belt adorns her waist and emerald earrings shaped like boxing gloves swing from her cauliflower ears.

She cannot be all bad for she slips a sardine into a glass of water to give the poor creature a chance for the sake of his wife and babies. The lazy bum starts in, so we will simply have to fade out.

REEL III.

Medbury Says Honeymoon on Boat Makes Sea Sickness Like Love

By John P. Medbury

AN American steamship company has announced a boat to sail around the world and says the passengers will be hotel guests only.

THE boat will be inspected before it starts so that there will be no stowaways.

THIS is a swell idea for a lot of people. I will be one of the first to sign up. The only thing I don't like is the length of time it takes. The world is going to pieces so much that by the time I get around it I may be too old to enjoy it.

OF course some of the bones passengers won't know when they're seasick; they'll probably think it's love.

MANY a girl thinks she hears husband's heart beating for her when she hears she's only a dollar bill in his vest pocket.

ONE guy wanted to know if the boat was going to stop near the jungles in Africa. He said his wife was always trying to get him to go somewhere and going back to New York and he wanted to give her the chance.

THE boat will be run by an organization that has been successful in running hotels. I suppose they'll have the heads of the hotels man it, I suppose.

IN order to encourage the hotel heads to run the boat they will refer to the vessel as the "skipper."

AND the weather bureau is thinking about conferring with Margaret Sanger in order to do away with as many "depths" as possible.

THE company is also planning to decorate with the dining room as all the passengers are newly

DETERMINATION AND ENERGY WIN

Isn't it true that you do not put enough force, energy, ginger, spirit and snap into what you do?

Isn't it true that you do not work to exert yourself sufficiently to do as well as you are capable of doing?

You would rather go along in an easy, comfortable manner than put forth the extra effort to bring about successful results of your every and physical power?

A long-drawn-out, sure often becomes a winner because the player has been imbued with the determination to win at all odds.

Half-hearted effort in no matter how good an effort it will not make him a winner against determined men who may have less natural ability.

And so it goes through every phase of life.

It is determination to win which comes out ahead.

It is not an easy thing, day after day, to give every ounce of physical strength and mental power which you have but it is the only way to reach the high pinnacle which actually lies within your power if you would try.

Dormant ability is worthless.

A lackadaisical spirit is always a loser.

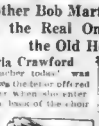
MISTAKEN IDENTITY

It Was Another Bob Martin Married in New York, and the Real One Came Back to the Old Home Town

By A. Maria Crawford

"NEW preacher today!" was the news the letter offered to Annette Fuller when she entered the little room back of the choir loft where the singers in old St. John's were assembling a few minutes before 10:30 one crisp Sunday morning. "Wish I could skip out while he's holding forth. Stunning - looking chap, six feet, broad of shoulder, got a head on him like a young Apollo. Of course he'll turn out to be an egotist divine instead of the other way round as we usually say it, a divine egotist."



In her gray cloth and moleskin wrap, Annette Fuller, a charming widow, made a picture to completely satisfy any eye and it was no wonder that the bass and tenor moved to greet her at the same time.

"A new preacher? Who is he?" There was a note of eager interest in Annette's soft voice.

"I didn't catch the name. He's from up East and much too handsome, as I remarked before, to prove entertaining."

The deep sonorous tones of the organ sounded and the four singers began ascending the steps that led to the choir loft. Annette Fuller took her place and looked down casually into the pulpit just below. The new preacher was looking around at her, and when he smiled at her she felt a throb of genuine emotion. The man was Bob Martin, whom she had adored for all the years of her youth. Bob Martin, who had been a devil may dare and a devil-may-care sort of chap and a frightfully clever philanderer among the girls of her set.

He had courted her with all the wiles of a finished lover—she had been eighteen and modeling clay in his firm, smooth, heart-snatching hands—and their affair had drifted on time's broad bosom until one tragic day when the startling announcement of his engagement to a girl in New York, where he was in college, had been flashed to the home town papers.

The regular pastor of St. John's introduced the Rev. Robert Martin and told of his eloquence that had made him an outstanding figure in the Episcopal church—told, too, that during the late war he had been decorated for his magnificent services.

Will the tiniest flutter of the pulse to remind her that he had once been sun and moon and stars to her fervid young imagination, Annette sat quietly listening to every word of Bob's. And no awkward, untrained theological student ever preached as poor a sermon as Bob Martin preached that day. His vocabulary, instead of being enriched by study, seemed to have been taken away.

She was running down the steps to avoid speaking when the tenor his watchful eye on her every minute, joined her. "Didn't I tell you that a chap with a face and figure like that couldn't preach?"

By that time they had reached Annette's sedan, parked near the chapel door, and the tenor was gallantly assisting her into it, expecting, of course, to be asked to ride home with her, when Bob Martin pushed him aside and with the well-remembered bravado of youth, coolly asked if she could give him a lift to the hote.

"Is your wife with you?" Annette, poised, self-possessed, turned to inquire when they were on their way. "Is she at the hotel?

"I've never thought of any woman as my wife except you," came the amazing answer. "Did you ever hear anything as terrible as my sermon this morning, just when I had hoped to do my best? You did that to me—upsetting the happy plans of my life once more, just as you did when the news of your marriage was flashed to me."

The car drew up under the porte cochere of Annette's beautiful home, where she lived with an old aunt silently they entered. Silent, those two who must have had so much to say to each other. He followed her into a cozy little sitting room just back of a formal drawing room, and they stood before a cheerful fire blazing comfortably on old brass andirons. Still wordless, both of them.

"How did I upset your plans this morning?"

He took one of her hands in his and to her amazement, his was trembling violently. "When a visiting committee from St. John's waited on me in New York and asked me to come here to preach today, on trial, I felt almost forcibly drawn to accept.

"When you entered the choir loft and I turned instinctively and saw you there, I knew why I was to come. When you sang like a nightingale, I tried to focus my thoughts on my sermon, but I could think of nothing but the happy fact—Annette is here. I am going to talk with her again. Think what it would mean to me to live in the same city with you to see you, to hear you sing—and now, because of that awful sermon, I've lost my golden opportunity unless—he leaned nearer—unless I can persuade you to go with me—on my mission of life—anywhere."

Annette did not answer that. Instead she asked another question. Why didn't you marry that girl in New York, Bob?"

"No," he said "You've forgotten everything. That was another Bob Martin whose engagement was announced in our little home paper. New York is a big place, Annette. There are many Bob Martins there."

There was no mention of her own hasty marriage. Peter had been dear to both of them.

The telephone on the little stand in the room rang insistently. Annette answered it. And presently she turned back to Bob, both hands out, all the love of her romantic youth warming her shining eyes and crimson lips. "They saw you come home with me—the men at the church—and even if this sermon was—was not as good as yours usually are—O Bob! we are going to live here after all."

All Women Are Charming—to Love

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

IF you're ever wondered, striding home on a cold Winter's night after a first visit by the fireside of your newly married friend, what he could have "seen In" the girl who handed you your cup of tea, and just looked at you, remember to hum to yourself the old, good humored song that they once sang in England and America when folks wore powdered hair and waistcoats with pink rosebuds on 'em.

It might have been written by Love himself. I know it is his favorite song, and that he sings it with a mighty gusto because it is stuffed with his own sentiments entirely. Love loves all women. He finds her worth attention—in a body; not just the girl with beauty comes in for smiles and plans.

So that is why your friend, who doted on a girl type with a thin, little elfish face surrounded by a tangle of dark hair, a daring, flirting, flouncing slangy damsel whose life was dancing, when you were both at military school, now has married and adores a sober, placid, plump blonde, who has little to say and likes to stay at home.

YOU marvel that she "never said a word—practically." Then you think perhaps THAT was the reason he liked her. It wasn't. It was because Love admired blond girls who said nothing as much as he did little dark ones with a nimble, sparkling tongue. He likes Lilies—and then, he likes Roses, too. And he sings for all the world to hear.

"Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen,
Now to the widow of fifty;
Here's to the flaunting, extravagant queen,
And here's to the housewife that's thrifty
Let the toast pass,
Drink to the lass,
I warrant she'll prove
And excuse for the glass!

"Here's to the charmer whose dimples we prize;
Now to the damsel with none sir;
And now to the nymph with but one, sir
Let the toast pass,
Drink to the lass;
I warrant she'll prove
And excuse for the glass!

"For, let her be clumsy or let her be slim,
Young or ancient, I care not a feather;
So fill up a bumper, nay, fill to the brim.
And let us e'en toast 'em together!
Let the toast pass,
Drink to the lass;
I warrant she'll prove
And excuse for the glass!

Now to her that's brown as a berry;
Here's to the wife with a face full of woe,
And now to the damsel that's merry

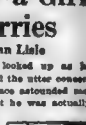
Young or ancient, I care not a feather;
So fill up a bumper, nay, fill to the brim.
And let us e'en toast 'em together!
Let the toast pass,
Drink to the lass;
I warrant she'll prove
And excuse for the glass!

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

MR. LACY looked up as he spoke and the utter concentration of his face astounded me. I could see that he was actually inside of a problem, and hardly aware of me or of his surroundings.



"You don't think West is the sort to lose his nerve, do you?" he asked at last. "He wouldn't, I'm sure, smoked out—bluffed from his position — or actually bullied into giving you any information, could he?"

"There's only one piece of information I want from him at this particular moment." I replied. "And it's about the last thing he'd ever reveal to me consciously and deliberately. I want to know—I want above everything to know—how is it that Dick and Dad Lee knew where Jim is now."

"They know that?" demanded Mr. Lacy abruptly.

"Dad Lee says they do."

"You must make sure. Of course West won't tell you how he got his information. He isn't going to take you to the source of a stream that's carrying such rich deposits his way. That's not to be expected. You're sure you've no idea? There's no one—close to your husband—no one who might know and—double-cross him?"

"There's no one who could double-cross him," I protested. "Since Mrs. Cordova came up from Mexico not even Mabel Storre—the woman I'm so fond of—knows precisely where Jim is. Now, when Mabel writes Jim about office matters, her letters always go through Mrs. Cordova. You see how Jim has guarded against a leak."

"Yes; has guarded well," said Mr. Lacy curtly. "But there is a leak. You don't suspect this Cordova woman? Your account of her has made it clear enough that you're heartily out of sympathy with all she does—and all she is. Evidently Miss Storre, who has your complete confidence, likes her as little as you do. Now, I've enough faith in your judgment to bank on Miss Storre and to put a large question mark after any railing of Mrs. Cordova."

"Mrs. Cordova's interests are closely linked with those of my husband," I acknowledged. "She has too much at stake to be anything but honest."

"Has she? Let's hear about it," smiled Mr. Lacy, with a terseness that made me feel he was on the trail of something definite. I felt it urge, therefore, to tell him about the story of Mabel Storre's bitter Tampico experience and the theft which the man she had hoped to marry had so "planted" that it was traced to her.

"Nice kind, Dick West," commented my auditor briefly. "He sounds capable of about anything. Attempted murder, arson, burglary and a neat and chivalrous stepping out of the picture when his absence might have cost the girl who loves him her liberty, as well as her right to happiness."

"It's all of that and worse," I confessed. "But I'm telling you only what you have to know to help me. There are a few sidelights I'm not turning on Dick West because that wouldn't be fair to—other folk."

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever tasted. A family supply—easily and quickly made. Saves about $5.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for coughs, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it.

Four 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—at cost. Nothing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly loosens the phlegm, stops the tickling throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat trouble and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CAN LOVE BE WON?

BEATRICE FAIRFAX ON INTERESTING

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls

"I'M in love with a man who doesn't care for me at all We meet seldom and I have no natural opportunity to get to be a habit with him or to attract him through propinquity. I am shy and reserved and none of my friends took to me easily. But now I have good friends and some admirers as well. But the one man I care for doesn't seem to know that I exist. Life isn't worth much to me without him and I have proved to myself by almost a year of absolute devotion to him and all he means to me.

"My pride won't let me do anything which might humiliate me in case there is no basis of mutual attraction. I can't take a step toward him—and he doesn't take a step toward me. I am to see him at a dinner in a month I suppose the hostess would give him to me for a partner, but I'm ashamed to ask her. So what would you do in my place?" writes Mildred.

Suppose, Mildred, you wanted to secure a good position. Would you hesitate to work for it? Suppose you wanted to get an advance in your own firm, would you refuse to make an honest effort to call attention to your work and to recommend it? And now that you want what seems to you the biggest thing life can offer you—why not set out to win it?

The normal human instinct is to go after your mate. Whether it be by unconscious allurement, or by honest mental effort, your heritage from prehistoric man is to make some struggle to attract the man you love. And the only thing that comes between a woman and her striving to make the man for whom she care care for her in turn is pride.

Pride is self love exaggerated to a dangerous degree. Dignity and a sense of proportion have nothing to do with pride. They keep desire from running amuck with us. But not to go about winning love with a high pride in the honesty of a big feeling for another is a weak and ignoble thing.

Real love doesn't often fail unless it fastens on the wrong object. When a girl wants to steal another woman's property her feeling is too dishonorable to rank as love. It may be infatuation or selfish desire—but it is not love, and it does not deserve to win.

But when you give your honest, normal, unselfish love, why shouldn't you show at least a free and generous interest and sympathy with the one you long to win? Why not set about making yourself necessary to the one whose love you long to compel?

An opportunity almost always presents itself for closer companionship. When it happens to come at a dinner, isn't it foolish and absurd to neglect to use your host tess to put you next to a man in whom you can state simply that you feel a genuine interest?

Why sit back passively and refuse to make an effort to attract? Why be too lazy or too indifferent to try for the greatest prize life can offer you?

To make your loved one aware of your existence believe in the strength of your own devotion and then proudly offer all of charm, generosity and understanding you have it in you to give.

A POPULAR DAY DRESS

4158. A frock of this kind is neat and chic, and simplifies the work of the woman who makes it. The model is in "slip on" style. The full shaped sleeve is comfortable and up-to-date. Plaits at the side seams give added fullness to the skirt portions.

This pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 3¼ yards of 54-inch material. The width at the foot with plaits extended is about 2¼ yards.

FOR SPORTS OR "DAY" WEAR

4197-3946. Comfort and grace combined to make this model desirable. Kasha cloth, serge or crepe de chine could be used for the entire costume, or one could make the blouse of crepe or silk and the skirt of woolen, velvyne or broadcloth.

The blouse, 4197, is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The skirt, 3946, is cut in 6 sizes: 25, 27, 29, 31, 33 and 35 inches waist measure. A medium size requires 3¾ yards of 44-inch material for the skirt (which measures 3½ yards at the foot with plaits extended) and 2⅝ yards of 40-inch material for the blouse.

HOME HOSPITALITY

A FEW HINTS OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Loretto C. Lynch

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management

A FAMOUS English writer has just said in an interview that most of the commercial plans of today are planned for and patronized by the young woman. And he finds the mature married woman in the average man's home suffering dreadfully from boredom and lack of contact with the outside world.

He says it of English women. But isn't it quite true of our own American women? We do not see the woman who has kept house for fifteen or twenty years, in our dance palaces recreating herself, nor do we see this type of woman in the theatre very frequently.

And he suggests as a remedy that the woman go in for a little hospitality at home. Many of the American homes revolve around the children to the exclusion of the parents. The little company gatherings are for the young folks of the family. But the sensible matron should make it a point to invite one or two or three or four people of her own age to a little social at least once a fortnight.

Often just one person even though uninteresting, will start a new trend of thought. Two or three with their varied points of view on the most commonplace topic, will help to relieve the boredom and give one a chance to show "hospitality."

Entertaining need not be expensive. A pitcher of lemonade and some tiny cookies cost very little and yet such refreshment rounds out the evening after a hand of cards or a little good music on the phonograph.

And right here let me say that a phonograph in a home will do more to bring into the home good cheer and start of "start the ball rolling" than most any other thing lest it be a piano.

A real grouchy old man whose kindly wife felt he was sort of a wet blanket at her every attempt to invite folks to the home and who had almost lost the knack of hospitality, was completely transformed when the wife conceived the idea of purchasing "some canned music" at one of the after-holiday sales. He jumped up and danced about gleefully to a tune that recalled his boyhood days.

But the whole point seems to be simply make up your mind to be hospitable. Hospitality is rather of the spirit than the material. Hospitality and social intercourse is not for the young or the wealthy alone. It should be the New Year's resolution of every housewife who feels she is out of touch with everything because she is a housewife, to go in occasionally for that delightful thing—hospitality in the home.

TELL THIS AT DINNER

An elderly Irishman was seriously ill and he was afraid that his doctors were keeping something from him. One day he instructed his faithful old servant, Mike, to hide himself in the room next to where the doctors were going to hold a consultation and to tell him what passed between them.

When the consultation was over Mike came from his hiding and went to his master. "Well, Mike, what do the doctors say as to my ailments?" Mike replied, "Faix, master, they say it is a very serious case and very obscure, but that it will be made clear at the post mortem."

"Why, sure, it was much larger," replied the willing witness.

"Was it as big as these two books together?"

"Much bigger."

"Was it as large as my head?"

"It was about as long, but not so thick," replied the witness amid much laughter.

QUICK RELIEF FROM COSTIVENESS

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping in the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

THE PRIDE OF PALOMAR By PETER B. KYNE

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

The story opens on the Rancho Palomar, an extensive tract in Southern California. It is the estate of the Farrels, an ancient California family dating back to the days of the Spanish conquistadores, and enlivened with a dash of Irish.

Old Don Miguel Farrel, alone on the heavily mortgaged rancho with only his last faithful retainer, Pablo Artelan, and the latter's expansive wife, receives a telegram from the War Department at Washington announcing the death in battle in Siberia of his only son, "Don Mike."

False news, as the subsequent scene at the Presidio army fields show where "Don Mike" is mustered out of the service. On the train, homeward bound, he encounters a party of three—an overbearing, wealthy Japanese, a prosperous-appearing American with a down-East accent, and the latter's beautiful daughter. He has dinner with the daughter. Don Mike leaves the train at Gespe and walks home, discovering the grave of his father. Kay Parker arrives at the ranch and tells Pablo Don Mike is not dead. Don Mike arrives and takes charge. He tells the Parkers they may stay as his guests. Don Mike meets his father's enemy and thrashes him. He then drives with Kay to El Toro to attach Loustalot's bank account on an old debt of Don Miguel's. Farrel and the Parkers ride out to see the building of the dam. On the way a panther is chased and roped by Don Mike.

It is a Cosmopolitan Production, direction of Frank Borzage, and featuring Forrest Stanley and Marjorie Daw. It is released as a Paramount picture.

"I'M naturally disappointed, Mr. Parker. I have a good crew and I like to keep the men busy—particularly when good men are as hard to procure as they are nowadays. However, I realize your predicament, and I never was a great hand to hit a man when he was down."

"Thank you, Mr. Conway. If you will drop in at the ranch-house tomorrow for dinner, we can put you up for the night, I dare say." He glanced at Farrel, who nodded. "We can then take up the matter of compensation for the cancelled contract."

"In the meantime, then, I might as well call the Dix off and save the expense," Conway suggested. "We'll load up the equipment and pull out in the morning."

"Why be so precipitate, Mr. Conway?" Don Mike objected, almost fiercely. "You always were the more easy-going, under-hearted old scout imaginable, and that's why you've never been able to afford a new automobile. Now, I have a proposition to submit to you, Mr. Conway, and inasmuch as it conflicts radically with Mr. Parker's interests, I feel that common courtesy to him indicates that I should voice that proposition in his presence."

"With the greatest good will in life toward each other, nevertheless we are implacable opponents. Mr. Parker has graciously spread, face up on the table for my inspection, an extremely hard hand to beat; so now it's quite in order for me to spring my little joker and try to take the odd trick, Mr. Conway. I want you to do something for me. Not for my sake or the sake of my dead father, who was a good friend of yours, but for the sake of this State where we were both born and which we love because it is symbolical of the United States."

Refuse to Cancel

I want you to stand pat and refuse to cancel this contract. Insist on going through with it and make Mr. Parker pay for it. He can afford it, and he is good for it. He will not repudiate a promise to pay while he has money in bank or securities to hypothecate. He is absolutely responsible financially. He owns a controlling interest in the First National Bank of El Toro, and he has a three hundred thousand dollar equity in this ranch in the shape of a first mortgage ripe for foreclosure—you can keep on those assets if he declines to go through with the contract. Force him to go through, force him, old friend of my father and mine and enemy of all Japanese! For God's sake, stand by me! I'm desperate, Mr. Conway——"

"Call me 'Bill' son," Conway interrupted gently.

"You know what the Farrels have been up against always, Bill." Don Mike pleaded. "That easy going Spanish blood! But, Bill, I'm a throw-back. By God, I am! Give me this chance—this God-given chance—and the fifty per cent. Celtic strain in me and the twenty-five per cent. Gaelic that came with my Galvez blood will solve the San Gregorio to white men! Give me the water, Bill; give me the water that will make my valley bloom in the August heat, and then, with the tremendous increase in the value of the land, I'll find somebody some place, who will trust me for three hundred thousand paltry dollars to give this man's son half my ranch. This is a white man's country, and John Parker is striving, for a handful of silver, to betray us and make it a yellow paradise."

His voice broke under the stress of his emotion; he gulped and the tears welled to his eyes.

"Oh, Bill, for God's sake don't fail me!" he begged. "You're a Californian! You've seen the first Japs come! Only fifteen years ago, they were such rare sight the little boys used to chase them and throw rocks at them just to see them run in terror. But the little boys do not throw rocks at them now, and they no longer run. They have the courage of numbers and the prompt and forceful backing of a powerful fatherland across the Pacific. You've seen them spread gradually over the land—why, Bill, just think of the San Gregorio five years hence—the San Gregorio where you and I have hunted quail since I was ten years old. You gave me my first shot-gun——"

"Sonny," said old Bill Conway gently, passing his arm across Farrel's shoulders, "I wish to goodness you'd shut up! I haven't got three hundred thousand dollars, nor a tenth of it. If I had it I'd give to you now and save argument. But I'll tell you what I have got, son, and that's a sense of humor. It's kept me poor all my life, but if you think it will make you rich you're welcome to it." He looked up, and his glance met Kay's. "This chap's a limited edition," he informed her gravely.

Sense of Humor

"After the Lord printed one volume, he destroyed the plates. Mr. Parker, sir——" He stepped up to John Parker and smote the latter lightly on the breast—"Tag; you're it!" he announced pleasantly. "I'll endorse that contract when you hand me a certified check for twenty-four billion, nine hundred and eighty-two million, four hundred and seventeen thousand, six cents, cents and two mills."

"Conway," Parker answered him quietly, "I like your sense of humor, even if it does hurt. However, you force me to fight the devil with fire. Still, for the sake of the amenities, we should always make formal declaration of war before beginning hostilities."

"And that's a trick you didn't learn in Japan," the old contractor reminded him.

"I hereby declare war. I'm a poor master at holding hard to whatever I do not wish the other fellow to take away from me, so build your dam and I be damned to you. Of course, if you complete your contract eventually you will force me to pay you for it, but in the interim you will have had to use slam-shells and woodpecker heads for money. I know I can stave off settlement of your judgment for a year; after that, should I acquire title to the Rancho Palomar, I will settle with you promptly."

"And if you shouldn't acquire title, I shall look to my young friend, Don Miguel Farrel, for reimbursement. While at present the future may look as black to Mike as the Earl of Hell's riding-boots, his credit is good with me. In this new law you've promulgated ratroactive?"

"What do you mean?"

"You'll settle with me for all work performed up to the moment of this break in diplomatic relations, won't you?"

"That's quite fair, Conway. I'll do that." Despite the chagrin of having to wage for the nonce a losing battle, Parker laughed heartily and with genuine sincerity. Don Mike joined with him and the charged atmosphere cleared instantly.

"Bill Conway, you're twenty-four carat all through." Farrel laid a hand affectionately on his father's friend's shoulder. "You come down to the hacienda tomorrow night and get your check! We dine at 6 o'clock."

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Marie Jeriza

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

THERE are some defective features that are a little difficult to remedy—a nose for instance that is too large for beauty or eyes that are small—but there is no reason why any woman who enjoys good health should not have hair that is glossy and thick and in every way beautiful.

You will notice that I was careful to include the modifying phrase "any woman who enjoys good health." Where there is ill-health, the hair seldom has the vital, glossy appearance that is so essential to beauty.

Here are a few "don'ts" that will also help:

Never wear a hat that is uncomfortably heavy or hot on your head. If you do persistently, look out for scalp trouble and falling hair.

Be sure not to pull your hair too tightly about your head with your hairpins and combs.

To torture your hair by too much artificial curling is fatal to its lovelinness. A few times a week, the curling iron or curlers carefully applied, will not injure your hair.

If your hair is naturally curly don't apply artificial methods. Cultivate its natural wave in every way you can.

Do not neglect to wash your hair when it becomes oily and whenever your scalp is inclined to show dandruff, which often this means a shampoo once a week, twice a week or only once every three or four weeks.

Any pure soap.

Massage the olive oil thoroughly into your scalp with your finger tips and leave it there twenty minutes.

At the end of twenty minutes wash your hair with warm soapsuds and a small brush. Be careful to get it perfectly clean.

Rinse it through three waters —for in thorough rinsing lies the secret of successful shampooing. The third water may be cold if, like many women, you like the bracing tonic effect of cold water.

In the third water pour in lemon juice. If your hair is very long, you may need the juice of two lemons. See that the lemon juice and clean rinsing water reach each hair of your head and every bit of your hair.

Now dry your scalp with a Turkish towel and let your hair gradually dry, in the sunshine if possible. While it is drying, massage your scalp with your finger tips to loosen it up and help the blood to circulate vigorously.

Now brush your hair well each day with a clean brush, and see if it does not remain in fine condition, with improved beauty, until it is time for your next shampoo.

FEEDING THE SICK

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

PEOPLE who are ill should drink water freely, especially between meals. Don't wait until the patient asks for it.

In acute illness withheld food until the doctor comes, giving only boiled water, either hot or cold. Don't do anything to tempt the appetite. Even a twenty-four hour fast will generally benefit a patient acutely ill.

Proper feeding in sickness frequently makes all the difference between life and death. The digestive organs of a sick person are usually incapable of efficient work unless the diet is considerably restricted.

Food for the sick is generally divided into four classes: liquid or fluid, semi-solid, light or convalescent diet, and full diet.

Under liquid diet are included milk, egg nog, albumin water broths, soup, beef juice, thin gruel and beverages. Such a diet makes but little demand upon the digestive powers. The food elements in such a diet are more or less dissolved and are thus easily prepared in the digestive organs for absorption. A liquid diet is not likely to obtain an excess of fat or improperly cooked starches. The liquids must be given at regular hours and at short intervals, say six to eight ounces every two or three hours.

Semi-solid diet includes fluids, plus milk toast, soft cooked eggs, well-cooked cereal, custards, ice cream and ices, junket and gelatine, jellies. Such a diet is useful in acute fevers because of its relatively easy digestion and because it makes up for the diminished body fluids.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Old friends are best."

Everyone will agree with the author of "Friends," John Selden, Who made this just observation.

"I one ear, cut the other."

This is a saying founded in general human experience. In Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" we read "One ear it heard, at the other out it went."

"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

By Betty Silver

BETTY VISITS A HOME THAT HAS NO WINDOWS

"OH, dear me!" Betty grumbled when her mama called her into the house to wash the windows. "I wish I lived in a house that didn't have any windows!"

"Fie! Fie!" laughed a merry voice and Gocomeback, the little travel elfin, hopped down off the rail of the fence and nodded his head to the astonished Betty. "I've heard other little girls say the same thing, yet I'm quite sure if you hadn't any windows in your house you wouldn't like it at all!"

"I'm quite sure I would, Gocomeback," Betty laughed. "You see, if I didn't have any windows there would be none to wash. I do so hate to wash windows."

Betty's Eyes Sparkled

"So I just heard you say," laughed Gocomeback. "It's strange that I was just on my way to a little girl's house when I heard you complain."

"Has she many windows in her house?" Betty asked eagerly.

"Come along and see for yourself," laughed the elfin, and before Betty had a chance to ask where they were going, she found herself sailing through the air beside the elfin.

"This little girl lives in a very queer little town, but there's not a window in her place, and if, after you've seen her house, you'd like to change places with her, I'll see if I can't fix it up with her mama to exchange little girls," Gocomeback laughed.

Just then they began to sail over a great sea of sand and Gocomeback told Betty they were over the Desert of Sahara.

"But we won't stop to visit the tent folks," he said. "We'll go on to the first oasis."

Betty's eyes sparkled as they landed in the centre of a queer little group of houses.

"By the way," laughed Gocomeback, "did I tell you the Sahara Desert is the largest desert in the world?" Just then a little girl came from around a queer-looking place, and when she spied the little elfin she came running up to him and bowed politely.

"This is Betty from America, Toto," said Gocomeback, stroking the little brown head. "She has never seen a house without windows and I told her your place had none, so we've traveled all this distance to see it."

Toto laughed and led them around what seemed to Betty just a high mud wall, but when she came to the back of the place Betty was surprised to find instead of a mud wall, a mud house built in a circle, in the centre of which was a lovely garden. All the openings in the place were on this court. Not a door faced the street.

"I suppose they think we'd be always watching others instead of doing our own work," Toto laughed. "Anyway, all our men folks live in the front of the house, while we women folks live in the back. I'm glad, for it's nicer back here."

Betty turned and smiled at Gocomeback.

"I think you were right, Gocomeback," she laughed. "I guess I'd better go home and get those windows were all washed.

Quick as a wink they were back in Betty's front yard and she squeezed the little elfin's hand as the soft, pretty white curtains blew out through the open window.

Gocomeback laughed and tipped his tall cap, and Betty thanked him and hurried into the house and before she knew it the windows were all washed.

A RHYMING OPTIMIST

—By Aline Michaelis—

"I'M getting better every day.
I'm getting better every way."
Then this plain-clothes man who sees
The magic Coue.
Thees magic words they make him say:
"I'm getting better every day."
And what's the truth, it is the truth; his thought has chased his ills away! Monsieur Coue resides in Texas to-day. He's still a merry dance; his simple soul bans grief and dole and gives no microbe room to grow. And when he's near a deadly crew who seem to be as good as new; he says: "They pass!" and of that mass not one survives the interview. It seems an easy thing to say: "I'm getting better every day," yet it takes grit to stick to it while twinges wound your joints play. Although he's been misunderstood, Coue has done a world of good. If man is fain to suffer pain, we all would dodge it if we could. So brave is he who dares assert, however much you bend may hurt, "Why fret and sigh? Pain's passing by; you'll feel fit to dance and flirt." "I'm getting better day by day" the words shed sunshine on the way, grim grief and care dissolve in air before the method of Coue. How fine to feel that every dawn sees some old woe or worry gone, and as you recall those troubles know you're truly moving on! How strangely awed the old earth grows to him who has spirit dowsed with each day less of strife and stress and more of gladness and repose! "I'm getting better every day." It seems a simple sort of way to leave life's gloom and find life's bloom; so why not reason like Coue?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Very simple vegetable courses may be arranged, and most delightful they are when there is only a little meat in the house or any member of the party is from motives of health or principle a non-flesh eater. Brussel sprouts neatly surrounded by boiled chestnuts, while the latter become delicious with a nicely arranged separate course.

* * *

Carrots are good and cheap they should sometimes be used as a separate dish and covered with parsley sauce. Cut the roots across, not lengthways. In three-inch pieces, to retain the full flavor. This advice also applies to parsnips. Cut in a dozen small portions lengthways, parsnips leave most of their flavor in the water in which they are cooked.

Crepon and cotton sponge cloths do not require ironing, but they should always be pulled into shape before quite dry, and folded neatly, otherwise they are apt to look unfinished when worn.

CHILDREN AS MOVIES

ACTIVITY IS KEY TO GROWTH

By Wm. A. McKeever, Widely Known Lecturer and Author and a National Authority on Child Training.

NOT passivity but activity is the key to growth of mind and character for your child.

You may suppress him for a moment for a photograph, but he will appear far better in a movie.

You may train him to suspend action for a half hour, "to be seen and not heard," when there is company in the home.

You may hold a threatening hand over him at school and compel him through fear to sit "perfectly quiet" at his desk.

You may, after long discipline, even compel him to sit and stare into vacancy while you listen to the sermon at church.

But do not forget that the foregoing lacks the first quality of learning. It is suppression and indicates at best little more than temporary suspension of the learning processes.

Children belong to the "movie age" of human development. Not merely are they the movies, but to be the movies is their divine right and true privilege.

Many parents are suppressing their children through fear that badness will develop in their conduct. But the price later paid by neurosis for the suppression of natural desire and emotion is a negative personality, weak in will power and indifference.

To be fair to his nature and to the best laws of training, your child must have much practise in asserting himself. If his conduct at first shows up badly, make it better through trial and practise and not through suppression.

You pull the taffy to make it white; you knead the dough to make it spongy; you pound the steak to make it tender; you fan the air to make it pure; you stir the soil to give it productiveness.

So you take the wonderful complexities lying dormant in your child and through a series of more or less rough, invigorating activities you finally bring him out a refined, self-directing, aggressive, high-potential citizen of the community.

Let us be clear about the matter. Your child was not intended to be a chrome or a thing to look at; he is a "movie." Those baby curls must come off. That dainty white waist must go. Tall skirts. He must get into the dirt and seat of action. He must continue to get into the mud, for when there is egg and class and learn through gives-and-takes.

Much that he does must go on record for the time being as so much blunder; but you consider the fault as so much information for both himself and you, a director, as how best to make the next move.

Action is the law of life and growth for your child, and must continue so until he becomes a responsible adult. Suppress him at his peril, and control and guide him patiently and prayerfully. There will be pain and tears at times, but you will also often be joy and triumph.

To see a child gradually unfold into the fullness of his capacities is perhaps the greatest satisfaction that ever comes to ordinary parents. The highest achievement in business is not to be compared with the joy of producing a worthy son or daughter and presenting him or her as a rare gift to society.

Let us be patient and long-suffering with our children and see them through all their necessary trials.

Why Corns?

Just say Blue-jay to your druggist

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it!) and in thin plasters. The action is the same.

Pain Stops Instantly

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub your chest with Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which relieves congestion and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your fingertips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief. 35c and 65c, in jars and tubes.

Better than a mustard plaster

IT WILL NOT BLISTER

ORANGE RECIPES

Housewives are given a great chance to win a crate of luscious oranges from the California orchard of Douglas Fairbanks, the star in the film show, "Robin Hood," or a pair of seats to the same show, by sending in a recipe of some good way of preparare the fruit for the table. Address Orange Editor, Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Orange Pudding

Five sweet oranges, 1 cup sugar, 1 pint milk, yolks of 3 eggs, 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Peel and cut oranges into thin slices, taking out the seeds; pour over them the sugar and let them stand while you make the rest. Put milk in a double boiler, let the milk get boiling hot, add butter as large as nutmeg, the cornstarch made smooth with a little cold milk and the well-beaten yolks of 4 eggs and a little flavoring. Stir well until smooth, pour over the oranges, add the whites, beaten stiff, sweeten with 3 tablespoonfuls of sugar. Brown in oven.

No. 3 Malvern terrace, Medford, Mass.

Orange Cookies

Two cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 orange, 1 cup lard or butter, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2½ cups flour, ½ teaspoonful baking powder, cream shortening. Add sugar gradually, and eggs well beaten. Add juice and grated rind of orange and flour which been mixed and sifted with baking powder and salt. Roll thin. Cut and bake.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

At the start of the year, suppose we charge our minds with thought, not of resolutions, but of resolution.

Or, resolution may be likened to electric current of unmeasured potentiality or power.

Or, it may be likened unto wings capable of carrying one to the heights of success.

To overcome many obstacles of magnitude calls for real resolution, for determination, for grit.

No man is a failure so long as he keeps on trying courageously.

It was sheer resolution—determination—that raised Andrew Carnegie to the top of the steel industry. In times of panic other steel men lost courage and eagerly transferred their troubles and their holdings to the intrepid little Scotsman. He laid the foundation of his fortune, not when the sun of prosperity was shining, but when financial and industrial storms were raging.

* * *

In its early days the oil industry was plagued by fires, explosions and other disasters. Operator after operator lost all over night. John D. Rockefeller once told me: "For years I never knew when I would waken in the morning to be told that we had lost most of what we possessed. Others gladly sold out. We went on in different track; we sought to diversify our interests, to acquire properties and construct plants at different points. In this way we spread out our risks, so that we couldn't be ruined by disaster overtaking us at any one point."

The operating of oil properties, oil refineries, oil plants is today relatively safe, but it took resolution to go deeper and deeper into the business in the early days, when the hazards were infinitely greater.

Schwab told me that for years he had to endorse personally every note issued by Bethlehem Steel to raise urgently needed funds. Also, Schwab once spent something like $10,000,000 on a patent or process which had been turned down by all the leading steel companies in the country—spent this money, too, before any profitable returns could be earned.

Another instance of resolution, was it not?

It is easy enough to form new year resolutions.

It is not so easy to summon up sufficient resolution to wrestle uncompromisingly with momentous and inominatious difficulties all through the year.

* * *

But without resolution there can be no monumental results.

Therefore, cultivate, cling to and practice resolution.

DUNLOP TIRE.

To R. E. R., Marlboro street—Plans for financing the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corporation of America were completed in December and an offering of $16,000,000 of 7 per cent. first mortgage bonds was sold. This financing had been pending for some time and negotiations had spread over more than one year. The Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corporation of America is the operating unit in this country of the Dunlop Rubber Company, Ltd., of England, which has an equity interest of 96.34 per cent. in the American corporation. The rubber estates owned by the company, consisting of about 60,000 acres, are in the Malay Peninsula.

EASTHAMPTON RUBBER.

To C. T., Washington Street North—Easthampton Rubber Thread Company filed a certificate with the commissioner of corporations, showing an increase in capital from $400,000 to $1,200,000 by the issue of 8,000 additional shares of $100 par, to be issued as a 2.50 per cent. stock dividend to holders of record December 7. Surplus as of November 30 was $753,877.

INDIANA STANDARD.

To I. H., Blue Hill Avenue—Standard Oil stocks are subject to withdrawal on all exchanges as well as upward. The investor who bought Standard Oil of Indiana at its 1917 top price of 950 was forced to wait until 1922 before he could liquidate his holding at a profit. In the meantime he might have purchased in more than 40 per cent. cheaper. At the recent high the stock was up more than 100 per cent. from its 1921 low. It not only outstripped its previous high point by a wide margin but also its previous high plus the surplus earnings per share plowed into the property since that high was made. We are in a bull market which may carry the new stock to any height, but it seems possible if you are interested in investment rather than a quick turn you might buy the stock cheaper a year or two hence.

Nash Motors Skyrockets Over 40 Points in Two Days of Boston Trading

GAIN IS AMONG BIGGEST HERE IN YEARS

Nash Motors new stock was the feature of trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. It followed up Tuesday's 17-point rise to 85 with another sensational gain to 111. Also advanced. As result of the recently declared dividends payable in new common and preferred, the stocks the market equivalent on the old stock which was purchasable at $453 last Summer is $853.

The issue is said to be very closely held and therefore in small market supply. Nash's gain was one of the largest recorded here in years.

United Shoe resumed its spectacular burst of strength, rising to its highest price since 1919 on expectations of increased or stock dividend added also by investment buying.

There were notes in two-point gains in Nash Royale, Mohawk, Dominion, Calumet & Hecla, St. Mary's Land, New England Telephone, International Cement, Gardner Motor, American Agricultural Chemical preferred and Boston & Albany.

Boston Notes

BOSTON Consolidated Gas Company reports output for December, 1922, as 866,173,000 cubic feet, an increase of 7.1 per cent. compared with December, 1921.

SALE AT auction of a block of Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad stock at 82¾, comparing with a low for year 1922 of around 27, calls attention to rapid strides made by this little road in overcoming troubles.

U. S. FINISHING COMPANY stockholders have voted to increase capital stock from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 and to distribute the increase as a 33 1-3 per cent. stock dividend.

SENECA Copper Corporation has purchased a hoist from Mohawk Mining Company, now located at Mohawk, No. 2 shaft. It will be immediately moved to Seneca No. 1 shaft and quick installation is expected.

BOSTON & MAINE Railroad is considered replacing trains on non-paying branches with "unit cars" which burns crude oil, can travel fifty miles an hour and can accommodate fifty persons with baggage.

QUINCY is getting the most of its mass of copper, only residues containing below 6 per cent. being allowed to go to the smelter, from the deep levels, between 75th and 81st. This makes copper in Quincy's mine the cost proposition.

WHITE Pine, one of Calumet's idle subsidiaries, is making no attempt to prepare for reopening, beyond bailing in No. 4 shaft to keep the mine dry.

AHMEEK'S daily tonnage in rock has lately been around 80 per cent. of the 1920 production, but yield of copper has been so much improved that recent record has resulted in better than that of two years ago.

ANACONDA—Chile merger may not win ratification, according to belief expressed in some quarters, despite official statement that plans are going forward well.

VENTURA'S production recently has been above 5,000 barrels of crude oil daily, all of which is refined and the finished products are distributed within a relatively small radius of the City of Los Angeles.

E. J. KULAS has been elected president and general manager of Parish & Bingham Co., succeeding Mrs. Alice Kulas Deceased. Mrs. Morris continues a director. Change is understood to forecast a new financial program.

SAVAGE "VICTIM OF BROADWAY," SAYS GENEVA

Broadway shows girls will understand what Geneva Mitchell means when she writes in today's instalment of her story of her romance with Robert S. Savage, and says some proposals are considered legal flage. She is giving the Boston American her reply to the story written by the husband from whom she is to be freed shortly by an annulment.

Copyright, 1922, by the New York American.

I have told you that "Bob" was drawing on his imagination when he pointed that his courtship cost him $80,000, whereas it could not have been more than $500.

And I have told you he was drawing on his fancies when he said I fell in love with him on the night at the "Midnight Frolic" when my pogo stick broke and I slipped. I have denied his spectacular story that he picked me up, raced me across the finish line and pressed his lips to mine.

PROPOSED IN HOUR.

Today, I'll begin by saying that the first time I met him was three or four days after my pogo stick fell. Immediately, he began to make love in an ardent, fiery way that captivated the imagination of a girl of seventeen. As we were introduced, he murmured that I was adorable and that he had wanted me ever since the first night he saw me.

Within an hour, he had carried himself to the heights of a burning proposal.

I do not recall what my answer was. That's how much in love I was with him then. Certainly the answer was not the unturning of my lips, as he would have it.

Now, all theatredom knows that every Broadway show girl has a certain following. She becomes accustomed, more or less, to the meaningless compliments of her escorts.

FIRST PROPOSAL.

That's why I took "Bob's" first proposal as a bit of levity. I don't even recall my reply to it.

Since than, however, "Bob" has assured me he was desperately in earnest that night. Gradually he began to make an impression on me. Obviously, he was a nice boy.

"Bob" says in his story that he was gripped with a "money madness" and that he spent $20,000 in a few weeks. I didn't know he had any money to be mad about. Nor did I know, as he now says, that his poetry so affected an uncle that the uncle placed $25,000 to his account.

To my mind it was just Broadway madness that gripped him. He was not intoxicated by liquor so much as by the lights of Broadway, its glittering tinsel, the wonderful scenes that make up the land of make believe.

Often he told me of his ambitions. One was to become a great poet. The other was to win the Yale "Y" in athletics. He showed me so much of the poetry he had written other girls that I jestingly asked him to write me some. He did. But his verses to me were far out-numbered by those he wrote to other girls.

But I'm getting away from his proposals. The second came at a party in a room filled with people. Together we left a scrap of paper "Bob" scribbled off two words. They were:

"Will you?"

I thought he was joking. And in the same spirit. I wrote back "Yes."

But "Bob," after all, was serious to much so that he called at a jeweler's the next day and bought an engagement ring and a wedding ring. I never got them, for the jeweler, perhaps a friend of the family, got in touch with "Bob's" people and what followed resulted in cancellation of the purchases.

When we finally married we did it in such haste there was no time for an engagement ring. We had to get a friend of his to hurry out for a wedding ring.

(To be concluded).

CLOSE MILK DRIVE FOR RUSSIAN TOTS

The "Million Cans of Milk Drive," conducted by the American Committee for Relief of Russian Children was closed by Frank S. Holmes, executive secretary for New England.

Deposit cans which have been in hundreds of Greater Boston stores for the several weeks will be collected today by representatives of the committee. The drive proved a huge success according to advices received from Russia.

DARTMOUTH MAKES GILE LIFE TRUSTEE

Dr. John M. Gile, of Hanover, N. H., has been elected a life member of the board of trustees of Dartmouth College to succeed the late General Frank S. Streeter of Concord, N. H. Dr. Gile was graduated from Dartmouth in 1887, and from the medical school of the university in 1891. He has been associated with the Dartmouth medical school as lecturer and professor of medicine and professor of clinical surgery.

Walter Hampden rose to wonderful heights of histrionic art in his interpretation of Shakespeare's "Othello" at the Boston Opera House last night. That the distinguished actor in his repertoire is becoming, if possible, more popular every day was attested by the crowded house and generous applause which greeted the efforts of Hampden and the other members of the cast.

Hampden's presentation of the jealous mad Moor of Shakespeare's immortal tragedy was one that could easily be taken as the mark of perfection in the role. He was forced to respond to repeated curtain calls.

William Sauter, in the role of the scheming Iago, Otholo's false friend, also called forth applause, as did the work of Mabel Moore in her part of Desdemona, the unfortunate victim of Iago's plotting. "Othello" will be presented again on Friday night.

JOHN BEATTY WAS NOT ARRESTED

In a recent edition of the Boston American there was printed an item in which it was said that John Beatty of No. 44 Heath street, Roxbury, had been arrested for selling cocaine.

Investigation discloses that the use of Mr. Beatty's name in this connection was an error. Beatty was never arrested and has nothing to do with the case. The mix-up resulted from the fact that the person arrested had a similiar name. This correction is printed in justice to Mr. Beatty, with apologies.

YOUTH RETURNS LOST POCKETBOOK

Mrs. Marion Norton has just recovered a pocketbook she lost, containing more than $100. She reported the loss to the police and the desk sergeant turned the money over to her.

It had been returned by Myron Edmonds, seventeen years old, of No. 17 Inland street, Bradford, who found it on a seat in a trolley car.

BOSTON AMERICAN

In the calendar year 1921, the total number of deaths, 10,220, in the city of Boston was 1,381 less than in 1920.

Dr. Coue Dangerous?

Not Very—Germs Don't Understand English

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

A number of doctors have signed their names to the statement that Dr. Coue, soon to begin telling Americans how to cure themselves by talking about it, is "a menace."

Dr. Coue, like many others that encourage you to THINK that disease is not real, can help you when there is nothing much the matter with you except in your IMAGINATION.

He can also help wherever disease is aggravated by depression, which is very often.

Dr. Coue and other theoretical healers are dangerous of course when they persuade human beings that disease is not real in itself.

When you have in your blood germs breeding by the millions, plainly visible AND REAL under the microscope, those germs do not cease raising their little families because of anything that is said, "day by day" or otherwise. Germs don't understand English.

An unfortunate father has just been indicted for manslaughter, because he refused to call a doctor to help his child suffering from diphtheria. The germs went on breeding until they choked the child to death. The chances are at least 50 to 1 that antitoxin would have saved the child's life.

However, there is no special reason for worrying about Dr. Coue or other theoretical healers.

They are interesting; they make people think and talk, and the world can spare a few lives in an interesting cause.

England Will Save

She HAS Saved Considerable

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

A representative of the British government is coming to talk about the debt of five thousand millions that England owes the United States. The gentleman, who will be welcome, intimates that part of his plan is to get the interest rate cut down in such a way as to save about a hundred millions a year for England on that one item.

The interest "saved" by England thus far, THROUGH NON-PAYMENT, amounts to eight or nine hundred million dollars, which is quite a saving. It probably will be bigger.

Nobody complains of that. The main thing is not to make that European debt UNNECESSARILY big. Unpaid interest alone will add five hundred millions a year to it. The French saying, "Good accounts make good friends," is to be remembered.

Our accounts with Europe are not very good and their friendship for us is not vehement.

Turkey's Ups and Downs

What About Russia?

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

The ups and downs of life are illustrated in Turkey. A little while ago the hideous Turk was hardly worth kicking. Europe had settled him for all time. England had decided just what should become of him. The Western European nations would take charge of his possessions and allow him just to live and no more.

Now, very haughtily, at a meeting of all the nations, he condescends to say that he will PROTECT Christians in Constantinople and elsewhere and not allow them to be massacred.

Turkey's wonderful return from the graveyard of nations is all due to the enthusiasm of one man—Kemal Pasha. If it could happen in Turkey why not in Russia or even in Germany? That it WILL happen in Russia there is little doubt. With six million soldiers ready there will be a movement worth watching there before long.

First Peace

Second, Money

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

It is said the Germans will propose to the allies two things; first, the payment of about five thousand million dollars in gold; second, and a great deal more important, an arrangement that would guarantee peace for thirty years.

Peace is what Europe and the whole world needs, and it is what France needs, even more than money.

Thirty years from now the Germans will outnumber the French, probably, at least by sixty millions. Perhaps in the thirty years arrangement could be made for permanent peace, especially as war isn't profitable even for those that win.

History Propaganda

Let Us Have the Declaration of Independence Read in the Schools

We sympathize with Councillor Watson's fight to have eliminated from the public schools some histories which undertake to minimize the high causes for which we had always supposed our Revolutionary forefathers fought.

We have taken occasion several times to observe that no man writing history for school children has any business to entertain a thought of propaganda. He should state the facts patriotically and let arguments and propaganda be found elsewhere. The charter of the history of our Revolution lies within the four corners of the Declaration of Independence. The allegations made there against the British government and the statement of the causes of the Revolution therein contained are final. They are not to be challenged by any picayune modern historian trying to be fresh with American history and in his small vain mind imagining himself welding together two nations by giving the lie to the most sacred charter of his own nation.

Under the present circumstances it would be well to read the Declaration of Independence in all our schools at least once a year, and we suggest to Councillor Watson that he provide for the reading of the Declaration of Independence, let us say on Bunker Hill Day or on Washington's Birthday, or some other great Revolutionary day when the schools are in session.

THE GREAT LAW OF LIFE

By Bruno Lessing

HERE'S a funny postal card that came from a reader:

"For the love of Pete write something to cheer a person up. You are always hurting about the truth. What good is the truth when you are up against it? I want consolation. Come across."

O. K. Anything to oblige. I'll try to console.

Nature's greatest, most wonderful and most inexplicable law is Constant Change. Everything keeps changing. The transition from youth to age, from life to death, from season to season—just a process of change going on.

A happy person becomes unhappy, a poor man becomes rich and vice versa, business is good and business is bad, you feel fine and you feel miserable—just a process of change. Nothing stands still. Whether it grows better or worse—or whether you, or anyone else, thinks it grows better or worse—makes not the slightest difference to Nature. All that she insists upon is that constant change goes on. Nature is very restless.

So cheer up, Groucho! Whatever is the matter with you will change. If it does not get better it will get worse. But don't turn up your nose at the truth.

The truth sometimes cures. By trying to grasp the fact that the earth on which you stand is flying through space at the rate of ten miles a second, the little corn on your toe or the sweetheart who deserted you for a plumber, or any momentary trouble you have, will not seem so important.

DIFFICULT NAME WINS LAWSUIT

AKRON, O., Jan. 3.—Despite his name, or perhaps because of it, a jury in Judge S. D. Kenfield's Common Pleas Court here gave Svetonar Wokosgarilyovits a verdict for $1,000 in his suit against the city for damages done his property when the street grade was changed.

Other petitioners received different amounts, the whole totalling $5,000. The jury referred to the one plaintiff as "Woky" as a time saver.

Marriage and Money

Editor Boston American:

I certainly hope Representative Hay's bill becomes a law. Isn't it far, far better for a couple to part before marriage than afterwards? And if I were the woman in the case I would be ashamed to let the world know that I wanted the man's money just because he did not want me. In a great many cases it is the woman that does not want the man, and he sues her, just for money, of course. And again there are cases where it is nothing but blackmail, where there has been no love whatsoever—just a mess of falsehoods to get money. I wish some one would enter a bill to prevent divorced people getting married so easily again. At our marriage we promise to love and cherish till death us do part. Isn't it better to part when we find we do not love and respect the other as we know we should than to marry and then part?

Sailor Indignant

Editor Boston American:

I met a civilian friend of mine on Scollay square and stepped to the edge of the sidewalk to talk a few minutes. Had been standing about two minutes when a policeman walked up and ordered us off the square. It is getting pretty bad when one of Uncle Sam's sailors can't even walk the streets of Boston. W. W. W.

For Young Girls

Editor Boston American:

I have two boys and two girls, for whom I would like to get underclothes if anyone would send them. The girls are seven and twelve years and the boys five and ten. The boys also need pants and overcoats. My husband has been out of work for almost two years. MRS. E. E. G.

ED. NOTE—Has anyone any clothing that will fit these children?

Sewing

Editor Boston American:

I read a letter in your column from a woman who wants sewing from a Mrs. E. D. B. I have quite a lot to be done in the way of plain sewing, which I would like to have done right away.

MRS. B. W.

ED. NOTE — Mrs. B. W.'s address and telephone number will be given to Mrs. E. D. B.

Children in Need

Editor Boston American:

I have three girls, four, eight, eleven, and a boy, six years. My husband is out of work, and two of the girls are sick with bronchitis, and the little one with whooping cough. They are all in need of warmer clothing, as it is impossible to keep the rooms warm. I would appreciate anything. MRS. B. R.

ED. NOTE—Has anyone anything to help Mrs. B. R. with?

SIX-DAY GOOSE DIET SEVERE

ATLANTA, Jan. 3.—Louis Pazoll prided himself on a large and noisy flock of geese, but Louis' neighbors didn't seem to care particularly for their vocal efforts and complained to the police. Pazoll agreed to do anything the police said. He was told he must sell or eat the whole flock of six in a week.

He started in, and the first day enjoyed his dinner. The second was not so bad. Then he began to weaken, but the family is still eating goose, for Pazoll is a law-abiding citizen.

SEEN AND HEARD

"LOOK out for autos when leaving car" is the National Safety Council warning just placed in hundreds of Boston Elevated street cars by GENERAL MANAGER DANA. This sign is said to have resulted in a marked decrease in the class of accidents against which it warns when used in other large cities.

HARRY LORD, a decade or more ago the star third baseman of the Boston Red Sox, is now a member of the Maine Legislature, representing South Portland. Appropriately enough, he has been put on the Fisheries and Game Committee.

New Hampshire's wealthiest woman, MRS. WOODBURY LANGDON, has purchased Belle Isle, at Little Harbor, N. H., from M. W. KERRISSEY of Boston. For years a boys' military camp has been conducted at the island by MAJOR W. H. PARKER, U. S. M. C., retired.

High-sounding names that distinguished great locomotives of early New England railway days have been ousted by substitution of numbers, and trains are now mostly run out of North and South Stations by numbers. A few retain old names and a few have proud new ones, but perhaps the most typically distinctive is that of "the Flying Yankee," which has run Down East over the B. & M. for more than twenty years.

Talk about speed in the mails. A letter from the Boston Chamber of Commerce to a Brookline resident was mailed on December 20. It was delivered the afternoon of December 26th.

MAJOR-GENERAL ANDRE W. BREWSTER, who has just taken command of the First Corps Area, dined at Buckingham Palace with King Edward VII just before completing his duty in the Boxer insurrection in China. The General says he enjoyed a good smoke in the regal "den."

His love of poetry and his ability to weave quotations from his favorite verse into campaign speeches undoubtedly had something to do with the re-election this yaer of CITY COUNCILLOR ALEC RUSSELL of Quincy. MR. RUSSELL'S fund of stories in Scotch dialect also made his rallies well attended.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON HOW TO KEEP WARM

By Garrett P. Serviss

WHEN I go into the city I am often made uncomfortable by the excessive heat in rooms of all kinds. It seems evident that great quantities of coal are being wasted. This is shameful, especially at the present time. I do not undertake to estimate the percentage of heat energy, expensively acquired, that is thus practically thrown away, but it is certainly large.

We do not need artificial heat to warm us. The body has its own furnace, and all it requires in cold weather is to have its surroundings kept at a temperature high enough to prevent the body's heat from escaping faster than the body's furnace can supply it.

The natural temperature of the blood is nearly a hundred degrees, but at the surface of the body the temperature is very much less, the precise degree depending upon circumstances. Since the bodily furnace is continually burning, it is necessary that the heat supplied by it to the tissues be conducted away through its surroundings, rapidly enough to prevent an accumulation above the normal temperature, but not so rapidly as to reduce that temperature. There must be a balance between production and consumption of heat energy, that is all.

When you feel cold it is because your natural heat is being drawn off through absorption by cold air faster than the internal source can supply it.

It is a practical question what degree of temperature is most suitable for the air of the rooms in which we live and work. Much depends upon the degree and kind of activity of the person. Muscular work increases the heat in the body above the average, and so a low temperature of the surroundings is demanded. When we are sitting still the bodily furnace furnishes only the normal quantity of heat, and, if the weather is cold, we need warmer air to keep the balance.

Much also depends upon the season. In mild weather, when no invasion of glacial air occurs through opened doors and windows, a room temperature of between 60 and 65 degrees Fahrenheit should be enough and sometimes more than enough. In cold and boisterous weather, when the conditions outside are reversed, a temperature of 70 to 75 degrees may not be too high.

If you want to test the ability of your internal furnace to supply warmth, you can do it in two ways. You can go into a place whose air temperature is say 75 to 80 degrees and saw a few stout sticks of cordwood into short lengths, or, surrounded by a similar temperature, you can concentrate your mental energies on working out your income tax. Perspiration in the first case and a burning head in the second will quickly send you in search of relief.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in Lives of Famous Women

—By MARK STUYVESANT—

The Way Charlotte Bronte Wrote "Jane Eyre"

THREE young girls sat chattering as only young girls can in a dreary big house on a storm and windswept moor. They were sisters, and they all wrote stories.

One of them, who had just had a manuscript returned to her, emphatically declared that she would write a book which would not be returned. They spoke of it, and then she outlined the story she intended to write.

One of the girls, during the recital of the plot, spiritedly exclaimed:

The sister planning the story exclaimed with even greater emphasis:

"I will! I'll show you a heroine as plain and as small as myself, who shall be as interesting as any of yours."

And she did. The story was "Jane Eyre." The girl who made good the boast was Charlotte Bronte.

These three sisters were the daughters of an Irish rector who had a parish at Laworth, Eng. Their father was a very peculiar, selfish and eccentric man.

The Bronte home was as dreary and dull as the surrounding country. Their mother had died when the girls were very young, and they grew up under the strange supervision of their father.

But they were not bored. They wrote, these three sisters. And they all wrote well.

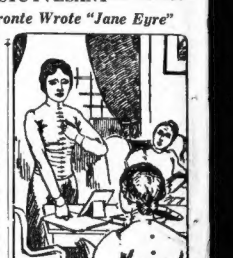
Charlotte's life was uneventful, but not unpleasant. The devoted sisters were only separated when Emily and Anne died within six months of each other.



"I'll Show You a Plain Heroine."

Providence sent another love to Charlotte Bronte to take the place left empty in her heart. This was love for the young curate who was Charlotte's father's assistant. She had great difficulty in gaining her father's consent to their marriage. But she finally did, and they were supremely happy together.

But death again visited the Bronte family, and this time took Charlotte. She had been married only six months.

Her necessary duties in "Jane Eyre," the story of a plain girl, of which Thackeray said:

"How well I remember the delight, wonder and pleasure with which I read 'Jane Eyre,' sent me by an unknown author whose name and sex were then alike unknown to me, and how, my own work pressing upon me, I could not, having taken up the volumes, lay them down until they were read through."
